Adlai Heads For Far West After 7 Labor Day Talks

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson took an abbreviated breather today between a seven-speech Labor Day sortie into Michigan and his second political invasion of the Far West within a week.

The Democratic presidential nominee takes off this evening for Los Angeles and an address Wednesday to the American Legion Convention.

Last week Stevenson hopped to Santa Fe, N. M., and Vancouver, Wash., to start a series of regional political powwows in advance of a campaign whose "official" kickoff time still is 10 days away—Sept. 13 at Harrisburg, Pa.

It may not have been official, but it certainly was campaigning Monday in Michigan.

He had pounded around the state by plane and car, seeing and talking to tens of thousands of people. More important politically, these people had a chance to look over Stevenson, 1956 version.

They appeared to be friendly audiences, generous with applause and cheers and whistles—even those in which a sprinkling of "Ike" buttons turned up.

State Democratic Chairman Neil Staebler said it was an entirely different Stevenson from the one of 1952. He reported that people were standing on tiptoe and stretching to see and hear the candidate this year and nothing like that happened four years ago.

So, he said, the outlook is "wonderful and totally different. In 1952 the people were puzzled and bewildered. Now they are eager to go along."

At Muskegon, the Democratic nominee interpolated in his address a concession of President Eisenhower's popularity but said "the world is crying for bold, firm leadership."

"Has President Eisenhower," he asked, "used his popularity to inform us? Has he used it to instruct us, to enlighten us on the grim realities of the world? Or has he used it to reassure us?"

And he held out to voters a suggestion that he and his party can lead them to a "new America."

"To believe in the new America," he said, "is to commit ourselves to fighting with every resource at our command those ugly patches of poverty and insecurity which still deny dignity, even decency, to the lives of almost one-fifth of all American families."

In Detroit, Stevenson said, one of every nine working men is out of a job. In Pontiac, he said, it is one in 10. In Muskegon it is many.

He told his Muskegon audience the Eisenhower administration has a "basically negative, unsympathetic attitude" toward "the pockets of poverty and unemployment that today mar the picture of this rich land of ours." He said there was blindness among Republicans because they see "unemployment in a factory and depression on a farm and the cost of living as only economic problems."

Ohio Records Tragic Toll For Labor Day Weekend

City Schools List Record Enrollment

Hartman Tells How Big Atwater Turnout Forced Late Changes

City Schools Superintendent George Hartman told today how the fall enrollment in the city school system, zooming to a record high at 2,600, caused a major problem that forced revision of the early planning.

Outstanding among the surprises at last Friday's opening, he explained, was the discovery that a prearranged pupil distribution pattern was thrown far out of proportion by a sharp increase in the Atwater School enrollment. Hartman had warned prior to the opening that adjustments on the pupil distribution pattern—deciding which pupil should attend which school—would likely prove difficult.

He has always been a firm advocate of all possible steps to "bring the school to the pupil"—that is, trying to have all pupils attend the schools nearest their homes.

Outlining the surprise in connection with Atwater School, Hartman described how the number of pupils for that school's 5th grade turned out to be 11 more than an estimate made only last June 1.

This was caused, he said, by many families moving into that section from other communities or from other parts of Circleville.

28 Persons Die In State Road Mishaps

Nation's Total Is 424, Or 56 Short Of Safety Council's Prediction

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents killed at least 28 persons in Ohio over the Labor Day weekend—one of the worst traffic fatality records in the nation for the 78 hour period.

An Associated Press survey showed the number killed in traffic this Labor Day holiday was close to the total killed a year ago, when the long holiday weekend claimed 29 traffic victims.

Only three other states—California, New York and Texas—reported higher traffic tolls for the period starting at 6 p. m. last Friday and extending through midnight Monday.

There were also seven drownings and four miscellaneous deaths in Ohio.

The worst single accident occurred Sunday when five members of a Licking County family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Barnes and their three young children, were killed. Their car collided with a milk truck at the intersection of Ohio 668 and 586 near Newark.

Nasser Talks Canal Status With Envoys

5-Nation Committee Presents London Plan To Egyptian Chieftain

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Talks between Egypt's President Nasser and the five-nation Suez Canal committee moved into the hard discussion stage today after formal presentation of the 18-nation plan for international control of the waterway.

The conference atmosphere was described as cordial but outside developments continued to cast menacing shadows.

Egyptian secret police arrested more persons, including another British subject, for spying. The British-French military buildup continued, and Egypt said its army was "strategically deployed to meet any situation."

Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies, chairman of the five-nation delegation, outlined the proposal for international operation of the canal to Nasser Monday at the opening of the talks.

Today's meeting was expected to dig deeper into the details of the plan put forward by Secretary of State Dulles at the recent London Suez conference.

Nasser already has said the international control plan is unacceptable to Egypt. But hope has been expressed the talks here might find a basis for negotiations that could develop a compromise solution to the controversy set off five weeks ago by Egypt's nationalization of the Suez Canal Co.

Sea-Going Band Master Is Sought

VINALHAVEN, Maine (AP)—This island community on Penobscot Bay hopes to protect a $2,800 investment by finding a music teacher who "has boat, will travel."

The money was spent on uniforms and equipment for 60 aspiring musicians in the junior and senior high school bands.

Now they need a teacher.

The school committee says the major stumbling block is transportation to and from the island. There are no bridges or roads connecting with the mainland.

Council Likely To Get Garbage Plans Tonight

City Lawmakers May Consider Successor To Cook; 3 Mentioned

The long-awaited plan to give Circleville a modern garbage collection and disposal system will probably get under way tonight when city council holds its first meeting of September.

Members of council have been putting a plan in ordinance form for the past several months, anticipating removal of the city's open dump from its present location on the western edge of the corporation. Councilman Harold Clifton said legislation will probably be ready for first reading tonight.

The measure will call for two-fold modernization of the city's garbage and rubbish handling—setting forth arrangements for a city-wide pickup system under contract and looking forward to a sanitary landfill dumping grounds.

Site for the new dumping grounds, councilmen said, will be determined by the contractor after the legislation clears council.

MEMBERS of the city lawmaking body may also give further consideration to a successor for Lee Cook, who resigned his place on council as spokesman for the second ward. At least three men are under consideration for the post.

Meanwhile, residents of the Dunmore Road section in the South-end are expected to tell council tonight how their cellars are being flooded through failure of the city sewer system in that locality. A spokesman for the group said corrective steps would be demanded "without delay."

New Breakin At Elks, But Nothing Taken

The Circleville Elks Club, located at 215 N. Court St., was the scene of another break-in—second within four days—some time between 12 and 2 a. m. Sunday.

Last Thursday morning, safecrackers gained entrance to the club and escaped with approximately $1,500 in cash and checks.

In the Sunday morning incident, burglars entered the building through a window located on the south side of the brick structure. Police said the window was forced open with a wrecking bar or similar type tool.

The break-in was discovered by Officer Don Adams, making a routine check of the premises. Investigation by Adams and Elks officials revealed that nothing was missing from the club rooms.

Discrimination On Jobs Said Hurting Nation

CINCINNATI (AP)—The chairman of the President's Committee on Employment Policy said today economic loss through job discrimination hurts America "in a cold war with Soviet dominated countries."

Maxwell Abbell of Washington told the annual conference of the National Urban League, "America can no longer afford the luxury of first and second class citizenship."

He said racial discrimination costs the nation more than $12 billion yearly "because the skills of members of discriminated groups are not fully utilized in the national economy."

Abbell heads a committee set up more than a year ago to root out discriminatory employment practices in federal agencies.

Abbell said a lack of qualified Negroes trying for federal jobs stems in part from an absence of adequate training facilities in some southern communities and sub standard Negro schools in the South.

Clark W. Blackburn, general director of the Family Service Assn. of America, in another speech told the conference public housing often "continues the pattern of segregation."

Retired Envoy Says 'Order' Stalled Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—Retired Ambassador Angus Ward says that because of a State Department superior's "directive," he withheld from Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal in 1948 his ideas on how to combat communism's spread in China.

Ward said he felt at the time that "I had prostituted myself" by obeying the instructions from an official he did not name.

He added that he later learned Forrestal did want the information he held back and was "disappointed" in their talk, attended also by President Eisenhower as Army chief of staff.

The former diplomat did not say how he thought the Red Chinese could have been stopped.

Ward said in testimony for the Senate Internal Security subcommittee that at that time "there seemed to be a reluctance on the part of those State Department officials with whom I spoke, under the level of undersecretary of state, to have affairs on China discussed frankly."

Ward's unsworn testimony was taken by subcommittee counsel Robert Morris in New York last Wednesday, shortly before Ward left by ship for a European tour. It was officially made part of the subcommittee's record today.

At the time of the 1948 incident, Ward was U. S. consul general in Mukden, Manchuria, but was in Washington for consultation.

Ike, Aides Map Strategy For Reelection Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has just about completed plans for a streamlined reelection campaign slated to start in about 10 days and take him into politically strategic areas.

The President worked on the blueprints with Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall and other advisers Monday after the aides had spent the morning drafting recommendations at the White House.

Some of the plans Eisenhower approved are scheduled to be announced before the week's end. The drafters said the discussions dealt with all phases of the campaign—Itinerary, dates and the theme of major addresses.

Hall said several weeks ago the President would make five or six nationwide television and radio talks, some outside Washington.

Eisenhower, at a news conference last Friday, again ruled out any barnstorming or "whistle stop" speeches. But he said he was not foreclosing the possibility of traveling into key areas (apart from the national television-radio series) for campaign addresses.

IN ADVANCE of the strategy sessions, Eisenhower made public a Labor Day report which had political significance even though it made no mention of the campaign.

It said the level of the nation's economy "has never been higher in peace or war."

Eisenhower said the report, submitted to him by Secretary of Labor Mitchell, was "personally gratifying to me as it will be to all our citizens."

Both the timing and the content of the report indicated it was an early White House bid for rank and file support by labor union members, despite their leaders' endorsement of the Democrats.

After speaking of a national economy at a record high level, the Mitchell report said:

"There are over 5½ million more people employed today than there were when you took office. The average American factory worker today makes almost $13 a week more than he did four years ago; and his takehome pay, after adjustments have been made for taxes and cost of living, has increased by more than $8.50 a week in the past four years."

ON THE NATIONAL scene, traffic accidents last weekend killed at least 424, or just 56 short of the National Safety Council estimate.

Late reports brought the AP tabulation to 424 traffic deaths, 89 drownings and 71 deaths in miscellaneous accidents for a violent death toll of 584.

Ned H. Dearborn, National Safety Council president, credited traffic law enforcement authorities, along with the press, for making the nation safety conscious.

"But," Dearborn said, "a toll of 44 lives is still a horrible price to pay for a holiday dedicated to better living conditions for the average man."

DEATHS FOR the Labor Day holiday, the last of the summer for pleasure-seeking motorists, normally exceed those of regular weekends. An AP survey from 6 p. m. Aug. 17 to midnight Monday Aug. 20, taking for a comparative basis, showed 368 traffic deaths, 77 drownings and 69 miscellaneous deaths for a total of 512.

The record traffic toll for any holiday period was 609 in the three-day Christmas holiday of 1955.

Surveying his weekend haul, Old Man Death noted the following as rules which were followed in chalking up the tragic highway toll:

If the speed limit sign says 50 m.p.h., step on the gas and do 80.

New American 'Brainwashing' Policy Rapped

CHICAGO (AP)—Official American policy with regard to men withstanding "brainwashing" is as far behind the times as TNT is behind the atomic bomb, a scientific consultant to the Army says.

Dr. James G. Miller, University of Michigan psychiatrist-psychologist, declared Monday that the present American code of conduct for U. S. military personnel when captured bears "the assumption that strength of character and patriotism can combat brainwashing."

"There is reason to suggest," Miller told the annual convention of the American Psychological Association "that the present code of conduct of our military forces has not yet come face to face with the potential technical developments in brainwashing."

"An officer does not order a soldier to remain at attention under ether anesthesia. It is the simplest common sense that no matter how patriotic he might be he could not execute such an order."

Girl College Graduate Fights Pilot, Plunges From Plane

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—A pretty, June college graduate plunged 1,000 feet from a rented plane Monday, leaving a fragment of her sweater grasped in the pilot's hand.

Marin County deputy sheriffs said they would resume a search for the body of Flora Elizabeth Anderson, 22. It is presumed the University of California graduate fell to death near Stinson Beach.

The pilot, Stanley Gordon, 28, of nearby Belvedere, an insurance underwriter, was questioned extensively and released. Acting Dist. Atty. Roger Garety said "it appears to be a suicide."

Gordon and Miss Anderson, daughter of Joseph A. Anderson, a San Francisco building contractor, were on their second date.

They had appeared hand in hand, gay and smiling at San Francisco Bay Airport and rented a small yellow aircraft.

An hour later Gordon flew in alone, obviously distraught and trembling. He still clutched a fragment of cashmere sweater.

"It's a terrible day, a terrible day," he cried. "Call the police."

Then he told this story:

At Miss Anderson's request he went to 2,500 feet, above the clouds.

Suddenly, the girl thrust against the door.

"Don't do that," Gordon ordered.

The next time he looked, her feet were hanging out of the door and she was starting to slip out.

Gordon took both hands from the wheel and grabbed for her. She fought back, attempting to force herself out. The uncontrolled plane went into a 1,000-foot dive and Miss Anderson's sweater tore in Gordon's hands and she dropped into the fog.

The girl's parents reported she had been visiting a San Francisco physician because she was "mentally and physically exhausted" from her studies.

Glass Strike Talks Scheduled Again

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Negotiators for the striking American Flint Glassworkers Union and the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute are scheduled to resume peace talks here Wednesday.

Federal Mediator William Rose said he invited the two parties to return to Pittsburgh to try and settle the 4-day-old strike of 3,000 union members against 32 glass producing firms.

Still to be set is a meeting between the union and the National Assn. of Pressed & Blown Glassware which represents seven firms employing another 7,000.

Three big Ohio plants are affected by the strike. Two in Lancaster are Anchor Hocking Glass Corp. plants with a combined payroll of $900. In Columbus the plant is the Federal Glass Co., with a payroll of 900.

Clues In Baby Kidnaping Pop Up, But Then Fizzle Out

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP)—Leads popped up and quickly fizzled out, but authorities sounded optimistic that kidnapped Cynthia Ruotolo would be recovered alive.

State's Atty. Abraham S. Ullman came out of a conference with police investigators and FBI agents Monday night and said:

"I think we can still look for discovery of the child. We have got leads and, of course, we are looking for the public to supply us with more information."

Ullman had earlier expressed the belief the child was taken not by someone who wanted ransom money but rather someone who just wanted a baby.

Cynthia was kidnaped from her carriage in the foyer of a Sears-Roebuck store Saturday—exactly six weeks to the day she was born. It was the first day out of the house since the birth for both the child and her 33-year-old mother, Eleanor.

Ullman said the best lead police have is a composite description given by shoppers and passersby of a stocky, little woman with a dark complexion. They said they saw such a person take a baby out of its carriage but thought nothing of it at the time.

Others said they saw such a woman walking across the store parking lot carrying a baby awkwardly.

Deputy Police Chief Frank Cattaneo voiced optimism this tremendous police investigation would turn up the baby, but he wasn't so optimistic about leads in the case.

"Frankly, we're back where we started from," he said.

The Ruotolo's (he's an $80-a-week paint salesman) keep their vigil at home by the telephone, except when they go to church to pray.

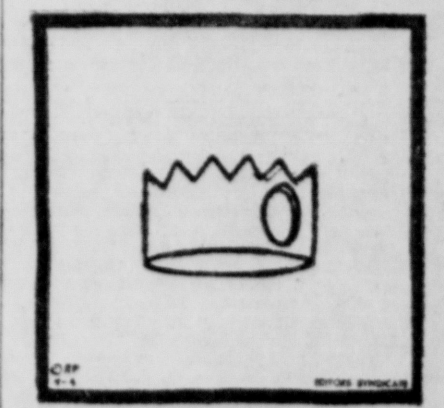

Ever since the kidnaping, the parents have voiced radio, newspaper and television appeals to the kidnaper.

HARTMAN said: "June 1, there were 32 pupils listed for grade 5 at Atwater. On Friday, 43 were on hand for the opening day of school!"

"In studying locations it was impossible to shift more than four pupils without hardship to the families involved, so a shift of a teacher and some bus-transferred pupils proved to be a more practical solution."

"Mrs. Frances Pruitt, grade 5 at Franklin, is being moved to grade 5 at Atwater. Mrs. Helen Cress teaches the other grade 5 at Atwater."

"The High Street pupils were delighted youngsters when they found a freshly decorated building and re-finished seating, corrected for proper size."

"The high school pupils were also surprised and pleased with the new decorated auditorium. The new seating and light green walls makes the high school auditorium very attractive."

"THE ATWATER school was the only location where enrollment difficulty was encountered on the first day of school. The new additional room is available at Atwater to make adjustment."

"Had Circleville lagged in its building program, it would have faced part-time school or would have had to have 10 rented rooms this Fall. Our new completed building program has proven to be adequate for now, and provides two empty rooms for the growth sure to come in the next two years."

The next time he looked, her feet were hanging out of the door and she was starting to slip out.

Gordon took both hands from the wheel and grabbed for her. She fought back, attempting to force herself out. The uncontrolled plane went into a 1,000-foot dive and Miss Anderson's sweater tore in Gordon's hands and she dropped into the fog.

The girl's parents reported she had been visiting a San Francisco physician because she was "mentally and physically exhausted" from her studies.

Did Dolf Kinney commit murder to get the woman he wants? Dolf Kinney is ruthless, greedy, the most powerful man in the Coyote Creek country. Was he behind the murder of Emil Jacobsen, the settler Narcissa Hull came to marry?

Can Kinney's brutal tactics and unquestioned power win the gentle, beautiful Narcissa? And what role will be played by Erd Ecklund, the selfless but mysterious doctor?

You'll find all the answers in the thunderous climax of a new Western novel, "Hostage", by Archie Joscelyn.

It starts on the editorial page in today's issue of The Herald.

Girl College Graduate Fights Pilot, Plunges From Plane

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—A pretty, June college graduate plunged 1,000 feet from a rented plane Monday, leaving a fragment of her sweater grasped in the pilot's hand.

Marin County deputy sheriffs said they would resume a search for the body of Flora Elizabeth Anderson, 22. It is presumed the University of California graduate fell to death near Stinson Beach.

The pilot, Stanley Gordon, 28, of nearby Belvedere, an insurance underwriter, was questioned extensively and released. Acting Dist. Atty. Roger Garey said "it appears to be a suicide."

Gordon and Miss Anderson, daughter of Joseph A. Anderson, a San Francisco building contractor, were on their second date.

They had appeared hand in hand, gay and smiling at San Francisco Bay Airport and rented a small yellow aircraft.

An hour later Gordon flew in alone, obviously distraught and

28 Persons Die In State Road Mishaps

Nation's Total Is 424, Or 56 Short Of Safety Council's Prediction

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents killed at least 28 persons in Ohio over the Labor Day weekend—one of the worst traffic fatality records in the nation for the 78 hour period.

An Associated Press survey showed the number killed in traffic this Labor Day holiday was close to the total killed a year ago, when the long holiday weekend claimed 29 traffic victims.

Only three other states — California, New York and Texas—reported higher traffic tolls for the period starting at 6 p. m. last Friday and extending through midnight Monday.

There were also seven drownings and four miscellaneous deaths in Ohio.

The worst single accident occurred Sunday when five members of a Licking County family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Barnes and their three young children, were killed. Their car collided with a milk truck at the intersection of Ohio 668 and 586 near Newark.

ON THE NATIONAL scene, traffic accidents last weekend killed at least 424, or just 56 short of the National Safety Council estimate.

Late reports brought the AP tabulation to 424 traffic deaths, 89 drownings and 71 deaths in miscellaneous accidents for a violent death toll of 584.

Ned H. Dearborn, National Safety Council president, credited traffic law enforcement authorities, along with the press, for making the nation safety conscious.

"But," Dearborn said, "a toll of 44 lives is still a horrible price to pay for a holiday dedicated to better living conditions for the average man."

DEATHS FOR the Labor Day holiday, the last of the summer for pleasure-seeking motorists, normally exceed those of regular weekends. An AP survey from 6 p. m. Aug. 17 to midnight Monday Aug. 20, taking for a comparative basis, showed 366 traffic deaths, 77 drownings and 89 miscellaneous deaths for a total of 512.

The record traffic toll for any holiday period was 609 in the three-day Christmas holiday of 1955.

Surveying his weekend haul, Old Man Death noted the following as rules which were followed in chalking up the tragic highway toll:

If the speed limit sign says 50 m.p.h., step on the gas and do 80. When approaching a stop sign or

Nasser Talks Canal Status With Envoys

5-Nation Committee Presents London Plan To Egyptian Chiefs

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Talks between Egypt's President Nasser and the five-nation Suez Canal committee moved into the hard discussion stage today after formal presentation of the 18-nation plan for international control of the waterway.

The conference atmosphere was described as cordial but outside developments continued to cast menacing shadows.

Egyptian secret police arrested more persons, including another British subject, for spying. The British-French military buildup continued, and Egypt said its army was "strategically deployed to meet any situation."

Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies, chairman of the five-nation delegation, outlined the proposal for international operation of the canal to Nasser Monday at the opening of the talks.

Today's meeting was expected to dig deeper into the details of the plan put forward by Secretary of State Dulles at the recent London Suez conference.

Nasser already has said the international control plan is unacceptable to Egypt. But hope has been expressed the talks here might find a basis for negotiations that could develop a compromise solution to the controversy set off five weeks ago by Egypt's nationalization of the Suez Canal Co.

THE COMMITTEE met with Nasser and his aides twice Monday for a total of an hour and 40 minutes. Menzies said he did all the talking.

He presented the plan approved by 18 of the 22 nations at the London conference, providing for creation of an international board, including Egypt, to run the canal joining the Mediterranean and Red Sea.

Nasser was in smiling good humor. Menzies also gave an impression of cautious optimism. U. S. Delegate Loy Henderson, when he was asked how the nego-

Glass Strike Talks Scheduled Again

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Negotiators for the striking American Flint Glassworkers Union and the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute are scheduled to resume peace talks here Wednesday.

Federal Mediator William Rose said he invited the two parties to return to Pittsburgh to try and settle the 4-day-old strike of 3,000 union members against 32 glass producing firms.

Still to be set is a meeting between the union and the National Assn. of Pressed & Blown Glassware which represents seven firms employing another 7,000.

Three big Ohio plants are affected by the strike. Two in Lancaster are Anchor Hocking Glass Corp. plants with a combined payroll of $900. In Columbus the plant is the Federal Glass Co., with a payroll of 900.

Gas Chieftain Dies

CHATHAM, Mass. (AP)—Stuart Crocker, 58, chairman of the board of the Columbia Gas System, Inc., died at his summer home here Monday. Columbia Gas comprises 14 companies including the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

Sea-Going Band Master Is Sought

VINALHAVEN, Maine (AP)—This island community on Penobscot Bay hopes to protect a $2,800 investment by finding a music teacher who "has boat, will travel."

The money was spent on uniforms and equipment for 60 aspiring musicians in the junior and senior high school lands.

Now they need a teacher. The school committee says the major stumbling block is transportation to and from the island. There are no bridges or roads connecting with the mainland.

New Breakin At Elks, But Nothing Taken

The Circleville Elks Club, located at 215 N. Court St., was the scene of another break-in—second within four days—some time between 12 and 2 a. m. Sunday.

Last Thursday morning, safe-crackers gained entrance to the club and escaped with approximately $1,500 in cash and checks.

In the Sunday morning incident, burglars entered the building through a window located on the south side of the brick structure. Police said the window was forced open with a wrecking bar or similar type tool.

The break-in was discovered by Officer Don Adams, making a routine check of the premises. Investigation by Adams and Elks officials revealed that nothing was missing from the club rooms.

NO PROGRESS has been reported in efforts to solve last week's $1,500 theft.

Meanwhile, when the latest break-in was discovered, a humorous note was sounded by James Carpenter, club manager, who said:

"This is getting monotonous. If those guys want to make an appointment, I'll be glad to arrange for it."

Clues In Baby Kidnaping Pop Up, But Then Fizzle Out

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP)—Leads popped up and quickly fizzled out, but authorities sounded optimistic that kidnaped Cynthia Ruotolo would be recovered alive.

State Atty. Abraham S. Ullman came out of a conference with police investigators and FBI agents Monday night and said:

"I think we can still look for discovery of the child. We have got leads and, of course, we are looking for the public to supply us with more information."

Ullman had earlier expressed the belief the child was taken not by someone who wanted ransom money but rather someone who just wanted a baby.

Cynthia was kidnaped from her carriage in the foyer of a Sears-Roebuck store Saturday—exactly six weeks to the day she was born. It was the first day out of the house since the birth for both the child and her 33-year-old mother, Eleanor.

Ullman said the best lead police

Council Likely To Get Garbage Plans Tonight

City Lawmakers May Consider Successor To Cook; 3 Mentioned

The long-awaited plan to give Circleville a modern garbage collection and disposal system will probably get under way tonight when city council holds its first meeting of September.

Members of council have been putting a plan in ordinance form for the past several months, anticipating removal of the city's open dump from its present location on the western edge of the corporation. Councilman Harold Clifton said legislation will probably be ready for first reading tonight.

The measure will call for two-fold modernization of the city's garbage and rubbish handling—setting forth arrangements for a city-wide pickup system under contract and looking forward to a sanitary landfill dumping grounds.

Site for the new dumping grounds, councilmen said, will be determined by the contractor after the legislation clears council.

MEMBERS of the city lawmaking body may also give further consideration to a successor for Lee Cook, who resigned his place on council as spokesman for the second ward. At least three men are under consideration for the post.

Meanwhile, residents of the Dunmore Road section in the South-end are expected to tell council tonight how their cellars are being flooded through failure of the city sewer system in that locality. A spokesman for the group said corrective steps would be demanded "without delay."

Careless Drivers Hear Yule Carols

ROCKY FORD, Colo. (AP)—Christmas carols on Labor Day?

Yep. Southern Colorado listeners to a local radio station heard them played after each news bulletin telling of the nation's weekend highway death toll.

Disc jockey Lou Anderson said he played the carols for those listeners who failed to drive carefully and who would not be around to observe next Christmas.

New American 'Brainwashing' Policy Rapped

CHICAGO (AP)—Official American policy with regard to men with standing "brainwashing" is as far behind the times as TNT is behind the atomic bomb, a scientific consultant to the Army says.

Dr. James G. Miller, University of Michigan psychiatrist-psychologist, declared Monday that the present American code of conduct for U. S. military personnel when captured bears "the assumption that strength of character and patriotism can combat brainwashing."

"There is reason to suggest," Miller told the annual convention of the American Psychological Association "that the present code of conduct of our military forces has not yet come face to face with the potential technical developments in brainwashing."

"An officer does not order a soldier to remain at attention under ether anesthesia. It is the simplest common sense that no matter how patriotic he might be he could not execute such an order."

tations were going, said: "I look happy, don't I?"

Menziez said he expected the closed-door talks to last through the week. Other nations on the committee are Iran, Ethiopia and Sweden.

Nasser said earlier he saw room for compromise in President Eisenhower's latest statement Friday affirming Egyptian sovereignty over the Suez Canal but insisting that it be kept open to international shipping. Nasser maintains that internationalization of the canal would fringe his country's sovereignty, but he has offered to guarantee unimpeded passage through it to all nations.

Egyptian authorities said the latest arrests in the alleged spy ring bring the number of persons charged with stealing Egyptian military and political secrets for British intelligence to 30, including "several nationalities."

Only one of the latest group arrested was named. He is John Thornton Stanley, 40, a British employe of the Prudential Life Assurance Co. of Cairo. Three other Britons already were in jail, charged with masterminding the ring. Most of the others arrested are Egyptians.

Burglars Have Good Meal, Get Away In Truck

Hungry burglars who broke into a drive-in restaurant two miles south of Circleville on Route 23 early Sunday morning also got away with a truck that was parked near the eating establishment.

In addition to taking candy bars, chewing gum and cigars, the hungry burglars drank a half gallon of milk, ate a box of doughnuts and a cherry pie. Then they finished their hasty meal with several bananas.

The burglars gained entrance to the restaurant through a rear window. Total loss was estimated at $19.

After finishing their dishonest meal, they drove away in the truck parked nearby. The truck belonged to a highway construction firm.

Later in the day, Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff identified the stolen truck two miles north of the city on Route 23. The vehicle had been abandoned.

FOE State Head In City Tonight

Everett Gardner of Sidney, state president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, will be the main speaker here tonight at the regular meeting of the local aerie of the FOE.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am married a second time. My first husband, the father of my son, also is married again; and he and his present wife are friendly towards my husband and me, as we are towards them.

Now my daughter-in-law and her two-year-old son (my grandson) are coming to pay me a first visit this month. Doris is such a sweet person, and always makes me feel welcome when I visit her home; and I would like to give a party for her during her stay with me.

But I can't think of an appropriate way, as her husband (my son) won't be here.

My friends and acquaintances in the community are eager to meet my son's wife and child, many of them having known John all his life.

He and I moved to another community when he was a child; but I came back here five years ago, to marry again and settle down. My son married three years ago, and makes his home in that other community.

About the party: Would it be proper to ask John's father and stepmother to a party for Doris? They've already met once, two years ago, when they visited John after the baby was born. Doris is in her late twenties and doesn't smoke or drink. What should I serve?

Please help me if you can.

olives, pickles, nuts and mints completing the menu.

What to drink at the later reception? Tomato juice and/or hot coffee for teetotalers; highballs and/or champagne cup for others, if your budget and principles permit.

As you perhaps know, a reception is a stand-up affair, where guests are expected to circulate cordially, whether or not they know the next fellow, and to make conversation as the chief diversion, treating food and drink as incidental.

The hostess should enlist a few congenial relatives or best friends to arrive early and stay to the end, to "man" the refreshments table (in shifts) and keep everybody happy (if possible).

Other visitors aren't supposed to arrive on the dot, en masse, and stay to the end—though they may. Ordinarily, a reception company ebbs and flows, with individual callers staying 30 to 60 minutes, on the average.

As for inviting your former husband and his present wife to such a party, do you really think they would wish to come, especially as his son won't be there? I should think it might be an awkward situation for all concerned, in any case.

The suggestion strikes me as insensitive—as if you aren't truly concerned to be fair with the feelings of the new partners, yours and his, who have entered the picture.

Is it your unconscious aim to show the other wife that you still have heartstrings in common with her husband, that she can't nullify?

M. H.

DEAR A. W.: As longtime family friends and acquaintances usually add up to odd numbers and assorted types, probably the most appropriate way to entertain for your son's wife, during her stay, is to give a late afternoon "mixed" party in her honor—a reception to which all and sundry are invited, specifically "to meet" her.

This brand of hospitality comfortably includes old, young and intermediate ages — bachelors, spinsters and married pairs.

What to serve should be decided in terms (a) of what you wish, or can afford to spend; and (b) the hour at which the party is given.

A reception from 4 to 6, or 5 to 7 p. m. (the teatime or cocktail hour) may be quite informal, with hot tea and hot coffee the featured beverages—dispensed from opposite ends of a dining table that is decked out with a modest array of miniature sandwiches, small cakes, candies and salted nuts for munchers.

Or if the weather is scorching, spiked punch at one end of the table, and at the other, iced coffee (to which individual portions of ice cream are added as glasses are filled), are suitable liquid alternates—still using the same buffet spread.

A reception from 6 to 8 p. m. theoretically should offer somewhat more substantial fare, since it coincides with the dinner (or supper) hour for many people.

Thus, whole baked turkey and baked ham might be the balanced attractions on the festive table, flanked by sandwich breads and beaten biscuit for "making your own"—with a choice of rich layer cakes, and such other tidbits as

DEAR A. Cincy Skindivers Bailed By Cave

MAMMOTH CAVE, Ky. (AP)—A group of nine Cincinnati skindivers were bailed by muddy and cold water Sunday from exploring a possible link between Crystal Cave and Pike Spring, but said they plan another expedition soon.

Bruce Lewis, leader of the Cincinnati Skindivers Club expedition said that in the next try "we will probably work from the inside of the cave from an underground river." Teams of divers penetrated about 40 feet into a small opening from the spring side Sunday.

Filmland Reporter Back From Holiday, Catches Up On News

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's nothing like a holiday for catching up on the news.

"What's been going on?" I asked Bob Hope on returning from my annual refresher.

Ski-nose was chortling about the Diana Dors dunking, in which his agent, Louis (Doc) Shurr, also was doused.

"Doc has a new outfit for parties," Hope remarked. "Top hat, white tie and snorkel."

Hope had to leave for a "Beau James" scene, leaving me to contemplate: What else is going on?

Wonder how things are out at MGM? Boss Dore Schary was a delegate to the big Democratic doings and whipped up the film of the party's achievements. Public relations man George Murphy was backstage ringmaster for the Republicans.

You can have the $64,000 question or challenge. Neither will never top the excitement of the Kefauver-Kennedy race...

The studios appear to be making money headway in the search for new male stars. Best of the new crop: Paul Newman, Anthony Perkins, Don Murray, Leslie Nielsen. These lads look ready to take over for the aging veterans. But where are the future Lana Turner and Bette Davises?...

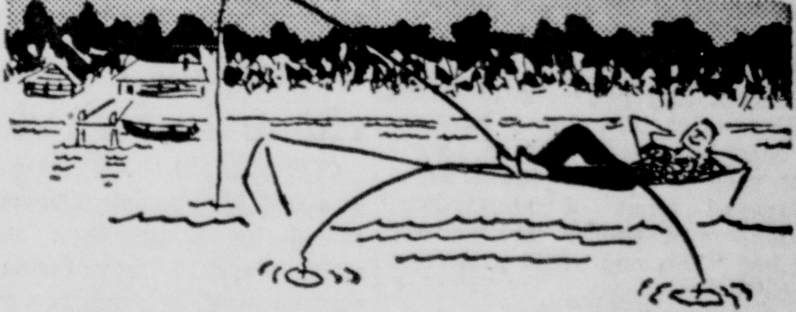

Pic business appears to be picking up, what with blockbusters like "High Society," "The King and I," "Trapeze," "War and Peace," "Moby Dick." All of which makes it appear that the industry's salvation is with epics that are strong enough to draw the set-watchers away from their hearths...

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am married a second time. My first husband, the father of my son, also is married again; and he and his present wife are friendly towards my husband and me, as we are towards them.

Now my daughter-in-law and her two-year-old son (my grandson) are coming to pay me a first visit this month. Doris is such a sweet person, and always makes me feel welcome when I visit her home; and I would like to give a party for her during her stay with me.

But I can't think of an appropriate way, as her husband (my son) won't be here.

My friends and acquaintances in the community are eager to meet my son's wife and child, many of them having known John all his life.

He and I moved to another community when he was a child; but I came back here five years ago, to marry again and settle down. My son married three years ago, and makes his home in that other community.

About the party: Would it be proper to ask John's father and stepmother to a party for Doris? They've already met once, two years ago, when they visited John after the baby was born. Doris is in her late twenties and doesn't smoke or drink. What should I serve?

Please help me if you can.

A. W.

DEAR A. W.: As longtime family friends and acquaintances usually add up to odd numbers and assorted types, probably the most appropriate way to entertain for your son's wife, during her stay, is to give a late afternoon "mixed" party in her honor—a reception to which all and sundry are invited, specifically "to meet" her.

This brand of hospitality comfortably includes old, young and intermediate ages — bachelors, spinsters and married pairs.

What to serve should be decided in terms (a) of what you wish, or can afford to spend; and (b) the hour at which the party is given.

A reception from 4 to 6, or 5 to 7 p. m. (the teatime or cocktail hour) may be quite informal, with hot tea and hot coffee the featured beverages—dispensed from opposite ends of a dining table that is decked out with a modest array of miniature sandwiches, small cakes, candies and salted nuts for munchers.

Or if the weather is scorching, spiked punch at one end of the table, and at the other, iced coffee (to which individual portions of ice cream are added as glasses are filled), are suitable liquid alternates—still using the same buffet spread.

A reception from 6 to 8 p. m. theoretically should offer somewhat more substantial fare, since it coincides with the dinner (or supper) hour for many people.

Thus, whole baked turkey and baked ham might be the balanced attractions on the festive table, flanked by sandwich breads and beaten biscuit for "making your own"—with a choice of rich layer cakes, and such other tidbits as olives, pickles, nuts and mints completing the menu.

What to drink at the later reception? Tomato juice and/or hot coffee for teetotalers; highballs and/or champagne cup for others, if your budget and principles permit.

As you perhaps know, a reception is a stand-up affair, where guests are expected to circulate cordially, whether or not they know the next fellow, and to make conversation as the chief diversion, treating food and drink as incidental.

The hostess should enlist a few congenial relatives or best friends to arrive early and stay to the end, to "man" the refreshments table (in shifts) and keep everybody happy (if possible).

Other visitors aren't supposed to arrive on the dot, en masse, and stay to the end—though they may. Ordinarily, a reception company ebbs and flows, with individual callers staying 30 to 60 minutes, on the average.

As for inviting your former husband and his present wife to such a party, do you really think they would wish to come, especially as his son won't be there? I should think it might be an awkward situation for all concerned, in any case.

The suggestion strikes me as insensitive—as if you aren't truly concerned to be fair with the feelings of the new partners, yours and his, who have entered the picture.

M. H.

Is it your unconscious aim to show the other wife that you still have heartstrings in common with her husband, that she can't nullify?

Mary Haworth counsels through her column and not by mail or personal interview. Write to her in care of this newspaper.

World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP)—It took a shock apiece to make President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson change their style. The shock Stevenson suffered seems to have affected his literary style, too.

Eisenhower's shock came in 1952, Stevenson's not until 1956. But that Stevenson has learned a lesson showed up Monday in his straightaway Labor Day speech in Detroit.

In 1952 Eisenhower was making a fumbling campaign until some of his warmest supporters told him publicly he was "rushing like a dry creek." Then he took out like a rabbit, made a slam-bang campaign the rest of the way, and won.

In 1952 Stevenson, who had to be drafted as the Democrats' presidential candidate, was so highly self-conscious it showed up right at the beginning: In his acceptance speech.

He not only employed the letter "I" so often that it may have set a record for that kind of speech but used a biblical phrase which conveyed tones of martyrdom: This was when he said he had wished "This cup would pass from me."

He conducted what has come to be known as a "high level" campaign, talking reasonably and well. There could be no doubt of his intelligence. And it was refreshing to voters long jaded by political claptrap to hear a politician who used both restraint and a nice taste in the English language.

But there was always the added touch of the literary dancing master pirouetting among the epigrams. He is alleged to have entranced some intellectuals. But there were those who wished he had laid aside the flowers.

If he had talked more simply and hit the issues harder, analyzing and explaining them, what he said might have stuck in people's heads better when they went into the polling booths in 1952.

But even though he lost, he seemed pretty much the same Stevenson this year when, knowing he had to fight this time for the nomination, he began his campaign by going into the state primaries for delegates.

His shock came when Sen. Estes Kefauver beat him so badly in the Minnesota primary. One more defeat like that would have just about ended Stevenson's hopes. And he knew it. He picked himself up off the floor and began to change.

Going into other primaries against Kefauver, he got around among people more, shook more hands — although it's still hard to believe there's a special magic in that — and talked more to the point. In short, he caught on fire.

With the self-consciousness of 1952 melting away, he beat Kefauver in the rest of the primaries in which they competed directly.

Former President Truman may have been still depressed by the memory of 1952 when, before the Democrats picked Stevenson this year, he tried to jinx him by saying he wasn't a "fighter" and couldn't win.

Now reports from Stevenson's trip around the country last week tell of such a change in Stevenson it's almost unbelievable.

When he sees fit he now drops his clipped accent, affects a drawl, gets downright folksy, and even scrambles his grammar. That may be all right, talking to small groups here and there.

But Stevenson would hardly try the homespun touch on nationwide TV. What he may well do whenever he talks on TV or to big crowds in person is what he did in his Detroit speech yesterday.

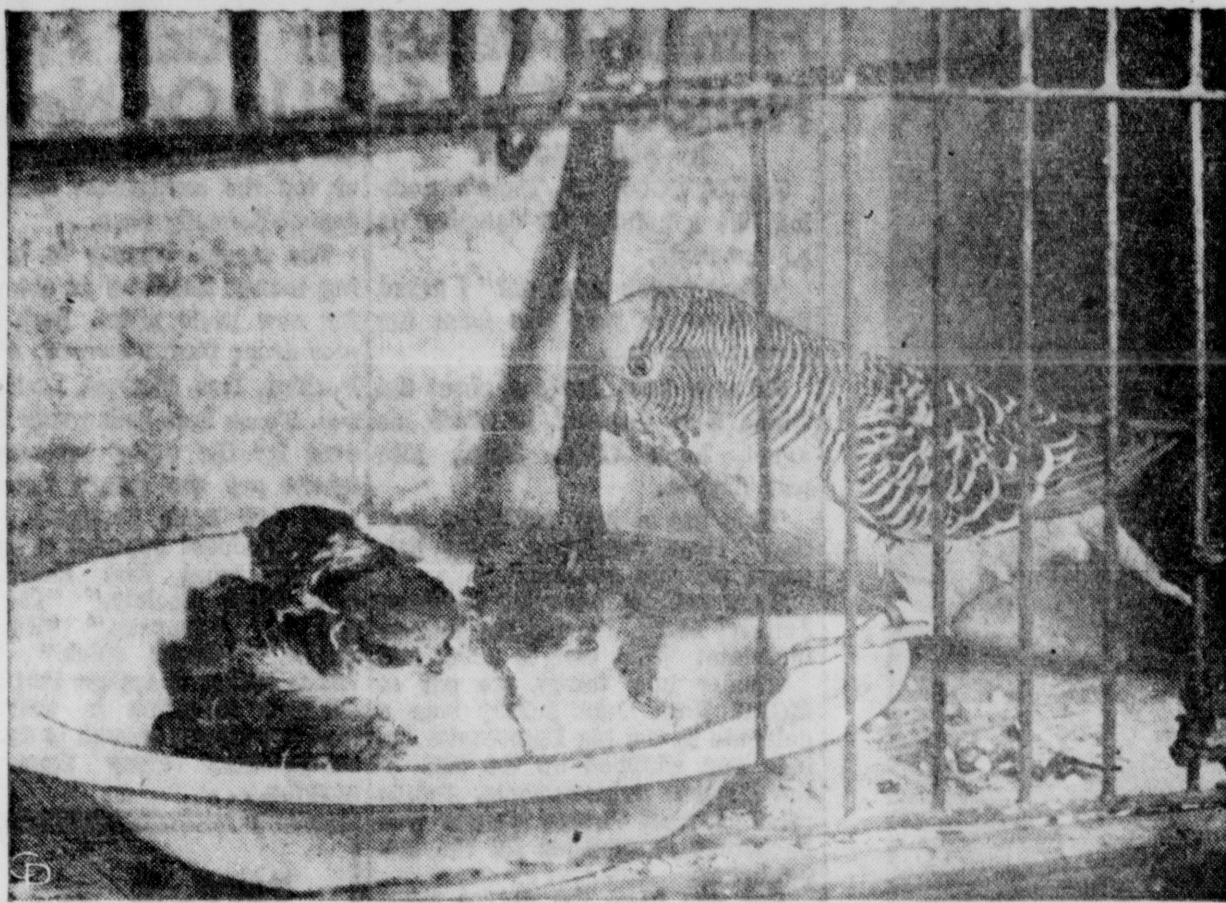

That speech was so plain, so lacking in literary flowers, it could have been put together by a rewrite man on a newspaper. But it had punch, it talked to the point. And it hit the issues, or what he considers the issues.

It was a straight-from-the-shoulder, nonliterary speech.

Government Will Sell You Buffalo

WASHINGTON (AP)—Do you prefer your buffalo live or dead? The government has them for sale either way.

The Interior Department has announced it will sell about 500 buffalo, along with 76 elk, 110 mule deer and 151 longhorns, all of which are surplus to the range capacity of its big-game preserves in Nebraska, North Dakota, Montana and Oklahoma.

An inspector put them in a cage with Biddy, who took them under her wing. (International)

Cleveland Negro Home Is Stoned

CLEVELAND (AP)—A Negro man, who said his apartment house was stoned by White boys Sunday night, plans to move from the neighborhood. William Taylor said a gang of 15 to 20 boys threw a rock through the kitchen door of the apartment.

Mrs. Taylor, 35, said she couldn't explain the incident. She said they had been on friendly terms with three White tenants in the same building since they moved in a year ago.

Housing Seen Tough Problem For Negroes

CINCINNATI (AP)—A social-work consultant said today housing is the toughest problem now facing Negro families.

Clark W. Blackburn, general director of the Family Service Assn. of America, told the annual conference of the National Urban League that public housing often

"continues the pattern of segregation."

He said, "Whites are relinquishing, in an accelerated fashion, their prejudice against working alongside Negroes, but are slow to give up their prejudice about living alongside them."

Blackburn said a study he made of family life in 10 American cities which have both Urban League groups and Family Service agencies indicates that employment opportunities are improving, but "are still subnormal" for Negroes.

The cities he studied were Minneapolis, St. Paul, Seattle, Portland, Ore., San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, St. Louis, Fort Worth and Miami.

Blackburn said public recreation facilities and voluntary agencies in the more progressive Northern cities "ignore the color line" but in the South "segregation still exists to a large extent."

He said that medical care in the North is "readily available to Negroes, but 'in the South, the segregation pattern is an important factor.'"

Blackburn's address was the first of a series before league delegates at their five-day conference here. It preceded formation of small workshop groups of delegates who are studying at this conference phases of the Negro family in the modern urban community.

WASHINGTON (AP)—It took a shock apiece to make President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson change their style. The shock Stevenson suffered seems to have affected his literary style, too.

Eisenhower's shock came in 1952, Stevenson's not until 1956. But that Stevenson has learned a lesson showed up Monday in his straightaway Labor Day speech in Detroit.

In 1952 Eisenhower was making a fumbling campaign until some of his warmest supporters told him publicly he was "running like a dry creek." Then he took out like a rabbit, made a slam-bang campaign the rest of the way, and won.

In 1952 Stevenson, who had to be drafted as the Democrats' presidential candidate, was so highly self-conscious it showed up right at the beginning: In his acceptance speech.

He not only employed the letter "I" so often that it may have set a record for that kind of speech but used a biblical phrase which conveyed tones of martyrdom: This was when he said he had wished "This cup would pass from me."

He conducted what has come to be known as a "high level" campaign, talking reasonably and well. There could be no doubt of his intelligence. And it was refreshing to voters long jaded by political claptrap to hear a politician who used both restraint and a nice taste in the English language.

But there was always the added touch of the literary dancing master pirouetting among the epigrams. He is alleged to have entranced some intellectuals. But there were those who wished he had laid aside the flowers.

If he had talked more simply and hit the issues harder, analyzing and explaining them, what he said might have stuck in people's heads better when they went into the polling booths in 1952.

But even though he lost, he seemed pretty much the same Stevenson this year when, knowing he had to fight this time for the nomination, he began his campaign by going into the state primaries for delegates.

His shock came when Sen. Estes Kefauver beat him so badly in the Minnesota primary. One more defeat like that would have just about ended Stevenson's hopes. And he knew it. He picked himself up off the floor and began to change.

Going into other primaries against Kefauver, he got around among people more, shook more hands — although it's still hard to believe there's a special magic in that — and talked more to the point. In short, he caught on fire.

With the self-consciousness of 1952 melting away, he beat Kefauver in the rest of the primaries in which they competed directly.

Former President Truman may have been still depressed by the memory of 1952 when, before the Democrats picked Stevenson this year, he tried to jinx him by saying he wasn't a "fighter" and couldn't win.

Now reports from Stevenson's trip around the country last week tell of such a change in Stevenson it's almost unbelievable.

When he sees fit he now drops his clipped accent, affects a drawl, gets downright folksy, and even scrambles his grammar. That may be all right, talking to small groups here and there.

But Stevenson would hardly try the homespun touch on nationwide TV. What he may well do whenever he talks on TV or to big crowds in person is what he did in his Detroit speech yesterday.

That speech was so plain, so lacking in literary flowers, it could have been put together by a rewrite man on a newspaper. But it had punch, it talked to the point. And it hit the issues, or what he considers the issues.

It was a straight-from-the-shoulder, nonliterary speech.

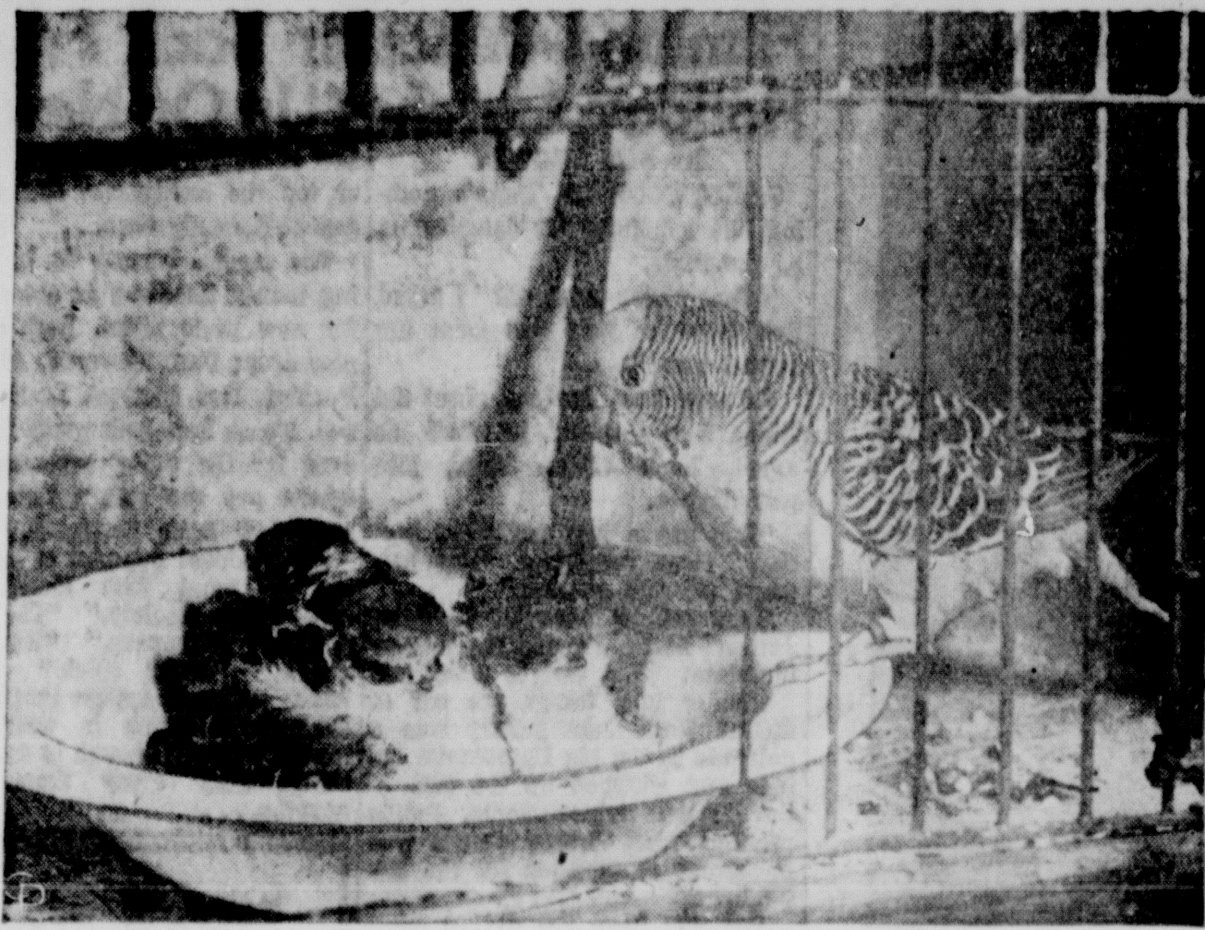

Government Will Sell You Buffalo

WASHINGTON (AP)—Do you prefer your buffalo live or dead? The government has them for sale either way.

The Interior Department has announced it will sell about 500 buffalo, along with 76 elk, 110 mule deer and 151 longhorns, all of which are surplus to the range capacity of its big-game preserves in Nebraska, North Dakota, Montana and Oklahoma.

Cleveland Negro Home Is Stoned

CLEVELAND (AP)—A Negro man, who said his apartment house was stoned by White boys Sunday night, plans to move from the neighborhood. William Taylor said a gang of 15 to 20 boys threw a rock through the kitchen door of the apartment.

Mrs. Taylor, 35, said she couldn't explain the incident. She said they had been on friendly terms with three White tenants in the same building since they moved in a year ago.

Housing Seen Tough Problem For Negroes

CINCINNATI (AP)—A social-work consultant said today housing is the toughest problem now facing Negro families.

Clark W. Blackburn, general director of the Family Service Assn. of America, told the annual conference of the National Urban League that public housing often

"continues the pattern of segregation."

He said, "Whites are relinquishing, in an accelerated fashion, their prejudice against working alongside Negroes, but are slow to give up their prejudice about living alongside them."

Blackburn said a study he made of family life in 10 American cities which have both Urban League groups and Family Service agencies indicates that employment opportunities are improving, but "are still subnormal" for Negroes.

The cities he studied were Minneapolis, St. Paul, Seattle, Portland, Ore., San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, St. Louis, Fort Worth and Miami.

Blackburn said public recreation facilities and voluntary agencies in the more progressive Northern cities "ignore the color line" but in the South "segregation still exists to a large extent."

He said that medical care in the North is "readily available to Negroes, but 'in the South, the segregation pattern is an important factor."

Blackburn's address was the first of a series before league delegates at their five-day conference here. It preceded formation of small workshop groups of delegates who are studying at this conference phases of the Negro family in the modern urban community.

WORKING TOO HARD LATELY? OFFICE-AT-HOME RELAXING

Eastern Industrialist Proves it Works

Victor Muscat goes over some business papers while relaxing in his specially-designed swimming pool-office chair.

By Central Press Association

NEW YORK—American husbands work too hard. In the race for the almighty dollar, they neglect their families and die of heart attacks at an early age. True or false?

"Some years ago this might have been the case," says Victor Muscat, 37-year-old industrialist, "but there are many of us today who have turned over a new leaf."

Actually, Muscat is revolutionizing the accepted routine of the wife and children in a cozy suburban home, while the head of the household spends nervous hours in an executive suite, then rushes home, spent and exhausted.

"Today, my office is in my home," Victor Muscat explains, "and it works out just fine."

That the "home" happens to be a beautiful mansion complete with swimming pool, rolling acres and private lakes in Greenwich, Conn., is a mere detail. Any home will serve the same purpose, Muscat believes.

When Muscat bought this estate, he thought it was a pity to enjoy it only late in the evening or weekends. It was then and there that he decided to do something about it.

Downstairs there were a huge "rumpus" room and other quarters which would make ideal office space. It is to this section of the house that Muscat retires after breakfast to conduct his business.

THIS HAPPENS to be a company of the largest suppliers of tubes for toothpaste, makers of metal furniture, printing rollers, plastic containers, and sundry other things to the tune of $18 million a year.

There is another advantage in having "an office in the home"—tax deductions. When the day is exceptionally warm, much business is transacted around the pool and sometimes in the pool, but Muscat doesn't consider these areas actually his summer office, tax deductible.

How does a wife react to having the wage earner around the house all day? "It's wonderful," says Mrs. Muscat, who before her marriage as Doris York, used to adorn many a Broadway show.

"Right after breakfast," says Mrs. Muscat, "my husband goes to his office. We meet at lunch; then Vic goes back to work. At about five o'clock, the children start asking, 'When is Daddy coming home?'—just as though he were in another town."

WHEN they first moved to Greenwich, the Muscats gave an intimate little party to meet the neighbors.

"I thought some of them would think it funny that Vic works at home," Mrs. Muscat relates, "but it turned out that quite a few of our guests were doing the same thing."

"Most industrialists can do just what I am doing, especially if they head their own business," Muscat is certain. "It is hard for people to get away from the accepted procedure of 'going to the office,' but once that obstacle is overcome, it can be done, opening up an entire new way of living."

Wrong Grocery Picked By Ohioan

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—An Ohio man rests in jail here, convinced he had done business with the wrong grocery.

Police said Willie Williams, alias Columbus White, 35, of Lima, Ohio, walked into a Charleston store Saturday, told a story about a sick wife and new baby, ordered a basket of groceries and gave the clerk a $55 check.

The clerk found the check was worthless. Police caught up with the Ohioan 12 hours later. He was charged with forgery.

The clerk was Capt. Walter Cavender of the Charleston City Police who operates the grocery.

MAKE A STORAGE CLOSET

Storage problems are solved with a closet which is also useful in covering unsightly pipes.

The framing is of 2x4-inch lumber. Cut the pieces to the proper length and square the ends. Nail the floor and ceiling plates in place. Position the studs and toenail to the plates with 10-penny nails. Next attach the header. Add horizontal bracing where needed when attaching the paneling. Make mitered joints for the door trim. Nail in place with finishing nails. Next hang the door. Finish as desired.

IT'S the LAW

This is another in a series of articles prepared by the Pickaway County Bar Association and printed by The Herald as a public service. The articles are not intended to answer the legal problems of any specific individual. And names, whenever used, are fictitious. Purpose of the series is merely to outline the law that applies, with variations, in common types of litigation.

You Are Responsible For Actions of Agent.

Suppose that you have hired Johnnie to cut your grass, and he runs your new mower into your neighbor's hedge, thereby ruining the hedge. Are you responsible for the damages? You are.

Or let us suppose that you find you need some supplies for the evening meal. You ask Johnnie, your neighbor's teenage son, to take your car and run to the store for them. On the way, Johnnie hits a pedestrian, seriously injuring him. Can you be held responsible? You can.

In both instances, Johnnie was acting for you. His acts, while performing those duties are, in the eyes of the law, your acts.

You are liable, despite the fact that you have cautioned him to drive carefully and he did not.

The average individual expects to answer for his own actions. He does not usually consider that he may be responsible for the actions of other persons. That, however, is frequently the case.

YOU MAY ask another person to do something for you, that is, to act as your agent. You may pay him, or he may be doing it without compensation.

You may ask him to buy or sell property for you. The action may be to negotiate an agreement for you with a third person.

If representations are made by your agent in performing the task which you assigned to him, you are responsible.

In a like manner, you are responsible for the contract made by him while he was acting for you. You may be held responsible for the acts of a person who customarily represents you even though he entered into a contract for you without your consent or approval.

For example, you may have a partner in a business, and you and he have agreed that certain contracts shall be made only upon the signature of both of you.

Unknown to you and without your consent, your partner signs such a contract with a third person involving partnership business. If the person with whom this contract is made has no knowledge of the terms of your partnership agreement, you are responsible for the contract which your partner has made.

YOU MAY HAVE agreed between you that neither of you would buy, without the other's consent, any items of merchandise costing more than $50. You did not give this information to the salesman who called on you. In your absence on a Thursday afternoon, your partner ordered merchandise for your store costing more than the $50 limit.

When the merchandise is delivered, you can not refuse to accept it because you can be bound by the contract of your partner. This is true in many situations, and the salesman is not bound by your partnership agreement because you did not advise him of the $50 limitation.

You may own an apartment or other rental property. You have placed it in an agent's hands to manage for you. One of the tenants may have complained to the agent about a leaky boiler. Your agent saw it, but did nothing about repairing it.

Later, the boiler explodes, injures one of your tenants and causes a fire, which destroyed the tenant's furniture. You had never been told of the leak, and had not had an opportunity to make the necessary repairs.

You are none the less liable for CLEVELAND (AP)—To a robin named Stinky, the great outdoors is for the birds. Other birds. Stinky has moved into the house of Mrs. Fred Clark in Euclid Beach amusement park and shows no signs of returning to nature.

For example, he now spurns worms and bugs for a diet of

Now Stinky has settled in her enclosed back porch, claiming an upturned mop for a perching post and a pie pan for a bathtub.

When he wants to go out, he taps on the back door and Mrs. Clark gladly gives him his freedom. The trouble is he picks on the door again until someone lets

All this disturbs the 17 parakeets Mrs. Clark keeps in cages on her porch. One parakeet, 4-year-old Dickie who had a vocabulary of 350 words, screams, "get her out of here, you dirty bird."

"Stinky has been a most unusual bird," said Mrs. Clark, "but this situation has got to cease. I'm hoping the zoo will adopt him."

Wrong Grocery Picked By Ohioan

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (P)—An Ohio man rests in jail here, convinced he had done business with the wrong grocery.

Police said Willie Williams, alias Columbus White, 35, of Lima, Ohio, walked into a Charleston store Saturday, told a story about a sick wife and new baby, ordered a basket of groceries and gave the clerk a $55 check.

STORED GRAIN SPOILAGE

ANY FARMER will confirm that a constant and major economic loss on the farm is the deterioration of stored grain. This causes millions of dollars loss each year not only in the United States but in all parts of the world.

This may not seem much a curse at the moment in this country, where there are mountainous agricultural surpluses, but it is an immeasurable factor in the specter of hunger that hangs over many parts of the world.

So it is of interest that a group at Kansas State College plans to tackle this question under a $36,000 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. The three-year project will be headed by Dr. Max Milner, distinguished cereal chemist.

Announcement of the project notes that this is a "comparatively unexplored area." The chemists will be looking for "basic chemical changes occurring in seed under varying storage conditions," hoping the investigation "will aid in evaluating the factors which influence the life span and nutrient qualities of stored seed."

It is unlikely the problem will be solved in this investigation. But the K-State research project can be a long stride forward in man's fight against hunger.

IRONIC RULING

A FEDERAL COURT ruling in Kansas City, Kans., recently rejected the contention of former Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson that he was imprisoned illegally. Dickenson was the first American prisoner tried for collaborating with the communist enemy. He will continue to serve his 10-year term at Ft. Leavenworth disciplinary barracks. Dickenson and another "turncoat" GI, former Cpl. Claude Batchelor, both are at Ft. Leavenworth. The latter was sentenced to 20 years.

At the same time three other soldiers who stayed with the Chinese communists for many months after refusing to return to the U. S. now are free. A recent decision of the U. S. Supreme Court prevents them from being tried for their actions. They are civilians by virtue of their dishonorable discharges while they were prisoners and are immune from any further punishment.

If Dickenson and Batchelor had stayed longer with the reds they would now be free instead of federal prisoners. Their one mistake, it seems, was in returning home too soon.

Two men are punished for traitorous acts. But others get off without punishment for identical actions—merely because they did not repent as quickly.

Many habitual television viewers turned off their sets during the political conventions, according to a survey. How long would movies have lasted if they had thrown out entertainment and substituted political speeches?

What has become of the old-fashioned idea that if we fed the foreigners they wouldn't turn communist?

The Meaning In A Name

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—What's in a name?

Well, it turns out, a lot more than often meets the ear.

The name of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, for example, holds a meaning unwelcome to the Democrats in an election year. Nixon means "Nick's son," and Nick is a pet form of Nicholas, which means "people's victory."

Democrats may get some consolation, however, from the fact that Adlai Stevenson's last name stands for "son of Stephen" and Stephen is derived from "crown or garland."

President Dwight Eisenhower and Estes Kefauver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, have names that hold a lot of history.

Dwight means light-complexioned, and it also means a descendant of Diot, possibly a pet form for Dionysius, the Greek god of wine. Eisenhower means iron miner or a man who made eisenhewers, a German saber blade strong enough to shear through iron nails.

Estes is derived from graceful, and also "Son of the East."

Kefauver is German for one who made and sold vats.

These are tidbits turned up by Elsdon C. Smith, a New York attorney who, after 20 years of research, has written a book, "The Dictionary of American Family Names." He gives 10,000 examples ranging from Aagaard (dweller in the yard by the river) to Zylstra (dweller near a drainage sluice).

Family names are one thing the Russians never got around to inventing first. The Chinese did—more than 2,000 years ago. Here are the original meanings of some of the names that may be familiar in your neighborhood:

Smith—A metal worker.
Jones—Son of John, "gracious gift of Jehovah."

Johnson, Johnsen, Johanson, etc.—ditto Jones.

Miller—One who grinds grain, but not necessarily with his nose to the grindstone.

Derivation of the names of some famous people seems oddly appropriate or strangely quaint.

Such as Calvin ("bald") Coolidge ("dweller near a pool of cold water"). Or Warren ("keeper of a game preserve"). Harding ("Firm, friend"). Or Wood-

These Days

General Douglas MacArthur in his role of Chairman of the Board of the Sperry Rand Corporation delivered an address which because of its limited purpose and locale passed unnoticed. MacArthur's address was more like that of a British board chairman who often uses such an occasion to speak on subjects which interest him and which may be of public moment. On this occasion, General MacArthur commented on taxes and what he said seems to be of value in the record:

"... In the lexicon of government there is no more grim and pertinent aphorism than Chief Justice John Marshall's warning as early as 1819 that the power to tax includes the power to destroy. Indeed, this is the weapon that Karl Marx declared was the vital one to displace the system of free enterprise—the system on which our nation was founded—the system which has made us the most prosperous people of all history.

"Reasonable taxation is of course an essential of government, but when taxation is used as a social regulator it becomes a menace to freedom. When its rate is so excessive that men work month after month with all that they earn going to government, it amounts almost to forced labor. It practically reduces them for protracted periods to something akin to involuntary servitude.

"It is an unwarranted arbitration that a handful of men, centered in government, largely bureaucratic not elected, can spend the proceeds of toil and labor to greater advantage than he who creates the money. Its excessive application can reduce free men to serfdom, can destroy initiative, absorb the capitalistic system and level representative government to sovietism."

The two "open" conventions at Chicago and San Francisco which adopted platforms that are so much like each other in essence that there is little quarrel in the country over fundamentals offer little hope to the American citizen who would like to save a few dollars, honestly earned and honestly set aside, for his own later years or for his progeny to inherit.

We are living in the era of Keynesian economics and the two parties of moderation plan to do nothing to help restore morality to a nation which is suffering from the psychotic ingenuity of bearing the income tax return.

Whereas business men can find tax sanctuaries abroad, the ordinary citizen can only hope that his deductions will help him over a bad year and that he will not run up against a "field man" who enjoys making miserable anyone who earns more than he does. One once told me, when I complained of his general attitude, that I ought to follow his example: earn little and have no problems.

Not only is the tax punitive but in recent years it is being collected punitively, the object, of course, being to operate a government agency efficiently even if it drives the nation to Poujadism in the United States.

It is significant that the man who is most ardently and diligently attacking the income tax system is T. Coleman Andrews who was the collector of the tax during most of the Eisenhower Administration and who resigned after he became convinced that his was a foul institution, a weapon for the destruction of American traditional life. MacArthur says of it:

CHAPTER 1

THE two took the stage at Forty Mile, giving each other a curt nod of recognition which was a fair measure of their regard for each other. Erd Eklund had always impressed Dolf Kinney as lazy, however good a medico he might be, and Kinney, a driving man himself, had scant use for anyone who saw life other than through his own eyes. And that was the condemnation for him in the mind of the doctor.

Eklund stood, bent over, blinking momentarily in the shadowy dusk of the stage, following the bright sunlit glare of northeastern Montana prairie. The smell of old leather was strong, mingled with that of horses, of sweaty bodies and stale tobacco. For a moment he stood hesitant, while his eyes made out his fellow passengers, and the fact that the stage was already loaded to capacity. But it was take this accommodation or wait over for forty-eight hours—and sickness would admit of no delay.

Of five of the passengers he took only cursory notice, classifying them automatically as drummer, a miner, a cowboy, an Indian in a blanket which he kept closely drawn about himself despite the stifling heat of the day, and a woman with faded eyes and work-roughened hands, the wife of some settler here on the border.

But the sixth drew attention as the sun draws water from the earth. Narcissa Hull was young and strange and new to this land, like a flower unfolding in freshness and grace. Her age the doctor judged at twenty, noting in his brief passing glance that weariness had not been able to quench the vitality in her eyes, that her skin beneath the softly folded brown hair was very fair and almost impervious to sun. She looked to be of medium height and slender, which were desirable qualities in such crowded quarters. Between her feet, slightly lifting her gray traveling skirt, was a rawhide-bound bag. She sat on the rear seat, facing forward, the other woman on one side, the drummer on the other. The miner was opposite her, striving ineffectually to find a place for his unusually ample boots so that they would not be in her way. The Indian and the cowboy occupied the opposite corners of the facing seat.

Dolf Kinney was ahead of Eklund, stooping of necessity, surveying the situation, and his eyes lighted at sight of Narcissa. Seeing the boldness in them, she looked beyond him to Eklund, considered him for a quick sure moment, and, having weighed him, found him not wanting. In her eyes he read appeal, but Kinney was already seating himself.

shoving in between the two women, contemptuous of how he pushed the other woman to the wall.

"Kinda crowded in here," he grinned to Narcissa. "But sometimes I like it that way. Makes it sort of cozy, eh?"

"I'd ride outside, but there's no room up there," he explained. "If so be as you find it close quarters, ma'am, you could perch on my lap. I've held ladies before."

"Thank you, no," she returned coldly.

She had a voice to match that quick, eager look in her eyes, save that now it was frigidly polite. The tone alone would have abashed most men, but no man, or woman for that matter, had ever seen Dolf Kinney at a loss, and he was no whit disconcerted.

As the stage got under way and dust commenced to roll in a thin mist up between the floor boards, he asked, "Going far?"

Her reply was brief. "To Coyote Creek."

"Coyote Creek?" Kinney exclaimed. "Now ain't that fine! That's where I live."

She had turned and was looking out of the window with elaborate unconcern, but Kinney was not easily deterred.

"I hadn't heard that we was gettin' so civilized as to start teachin' the kids and meebby havin' us a schoolmarm," he said. "But meebby I'm wrong, eh?"

To that she gave no reply, and he tried again.

"Or meebby you're out this way lookin' for a husband, eh?" he asked boldly.

This time she turned and surveyed him while the others watched with increasing interest. Erd Eklund found himself hanging on her words.

"As a matter of fact, I am," she agreed.

"Well, ain't that fine!" Kinney exclaimed. "This is sure my lucky day. Happens I'm lookin' for a wife, too. Didn't know it till I set eyes on you, but it didn't take me long to make up my mind. Ask Doc Eklund here if I ain't the pushiest, richest man in this whole part of the country. He'll tell you you couldn't do better!"

She flashed a glance at Eklund, not one of inquiry, but the doctor spoke for the first time.

"He's right about the first part of it, ma'am," he said gravely.

He caught the responsive gleam in her eyes, and her answer would have devastated a less thick-skinned man than Kinney. "As it happens, I already have a man," she said. "I'm coming out to marry him because I've known him before."

"The doggoned lucky coyote! What's his name?" Kinney countered. "Anybody I know?"

"I'd doubt that," she retorted. "His name is Emil Jacobsen."

"Jacobsen? Sure, I know him. Big, rawboned Swede. Got a shack out in the middle of the prairie. Tryin' to farm and be a rancher, which for a tenderfoot is like a man liftin' himself by the seat of his britches. No fit place for a woman, way out there, specially a pretty girl like you. Not much of a feller either, the way he strikes me. You'll do a lot better to take me."

She looked at him, opened her mouth in exasperation, then seemed to think better of it and turned back to the window. But Kinney was not easily squelched.

"Keep it in mind," he said. "My offer stays open, to you. And you'll find, time you look around, that you can't do better. Fact is, you can't do as well, nowhere else. I'm a proper man, and properly able to take care of a woman."

Eklund regarded him curiously. He had long known that Kinney was an extrovert, so completely wrapped up in his own ideas that he cared no whit for the opinions of anyone else, but to propose in public in such a manner was going pretty far, even for him. Narcissa continued to look the other way, and Kinney fell to talking with the drummer, who seemed to find him amusing. Eklund did not. He knew him too well for what he was.

Owner of the trading post and the biggest saloon, supplier for the local army post, and with his finger in other enterprises, Kinney pretty well dominated the community, just as he sought to run everyone in it. He had failed with Eklund, so far, partly because Eklund's business as a doctor was not one readily controlled. But in the half-year that Eklund had spent in the town, he had tried.

The miles, jolting and uncomfortable, passed in silence on Narcissa's part. It was not until they were finally pulling into Coyote Creek that Kinney addressed her directly again.

"You had time to think over what I said?" he asked. "It's a good offer."

"Thank you, I'm not interested," she returned shortly.

"You could do a lot worse," Kinney insisted, and swung down as the stage halted in a fresh cloud of dust which swirled around them. His eyes ranged the small group of bystanders, swung in a quick survey of the small town itself. Located in the midst of a treeless prairie, it was easy to look it over.

"Looks like your feller didn't show up," Kinney added. "When you change your mind, let me know."

Another reason the Republicans want to keep their jobs. The administration finds it may wind up the year with a billion-dollar surplus.

You can't blame the GOP for not wanting the Democrats to get the benefit of a surplus. The GOP took the leftovers for 20 years and they're not a mind to give them up now.

Compared to the national debt of over 270 billions, one billion looks pretty puny. However, in these days of high prices every billion counts.

For instance, the Agriculture department found that family food bills went up from $10 to $27 a week from 1942 to 1955. With food that valuable, it's no wonder nearly everybody's got an electric refrigerator.

DIET AND HEALTH

Coffee Break Can Be A Healthy Pleasure

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THAT old American standby, most widely used in the United States, the coffee break, might be a health help if it is just taken in moderation.

While most of us drink coffee simply because we enjoy it, there are other reasons for consuming this beverage.

For instance, two cups of heavily roasted coffee contain your daily requirement of the vitamin niacin.

Key Defect

Niacin is one of the B vitamins. A deficiency of it is the key nutritional defect in the human disease pellagra, once a serious problem.

Chemical and bacterial tests, conducted about ten years ago, showed that an average cup of coffee contained about one-tenth of the minimum daily requirement of niacin.

Recently, Dr. L. J. Tepley, of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, revealed that heavy roasting, as practiced to some extent commercially, brings the niacin level to nearly .05 per cent. That's about five times the niacin content of the roasted coffees.

Good Remedy

Caffeine—which is found in coffee—is a good remedy for relieving several varieties of headaches, according to Dr. Arnold P. Friedman of Columbia University's New York Headache Clinic. He says caffeine taken alone or in combination with other drugs may be better than the new tranquilizers for tension and migraine headaches. He calls caffeine combined with aspirin "the sovereign remedy" for the garden variety of headache that troubles many.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

D. C.: What causes night sweats?

Answer: There are many causes for night sweats. The most common one, of course, is sleeping with too many covers. It may also be due to the presence of a chronic infection in the body.

Tuberculosis is another common cause, but the other symptoms of this disease are more pronounced, such as loss of weight, coughing, and fever.

Its excessive application can reduce free men to serfdom, can destroy initiative, absorb the capitalistic system and level representative government to sovietism."

The two "open" conventions at Chicago and San Francisco which adopted platforms that are so much like each other in essence that there is little quarrel in the country over fundamentals offer little hope to the American citizen who would like to save a few dollars, honestly earned and honestly set aside, for his own later years or for his progeny to inherit.

We are living in the era of Keynesian economics and the two parties of moderation plan to do nothing to help restore morality to a nation which is suffering from the psychotic ingenuity of bearing the income tax return.

Whereas business men can find tax sanctuaries abroad, the ordinary citizen can only hope that his deductions will help him over a bad year and that he will not run up against a "field man" who enjoys making miserable anyone who earns more than he does. One once told me, when I complained of his general attitude, that I ought to follow his example: earn little and have no problems.

Not only is the tax punitive but in recent years it is being collected punitively, the object, of course, being to operate a government agency efficiently even if it drives the nation to Poujadism in the United States.

It is significant that the man who is most ardently and diligently attacking the income tax system is T. Coleman Andrews who was the collector of the tax during most of the Eisenhower Administration and who resigned after he became convinced that his was a foul institution, a weapon for the destruction of American traditional life. MacArthur says of it:

CHAPTER 1

THE two took the stage at Forty Mile, giving each other a curt nod of recognition which was a fair measure of their regard for each other. Erd Eklund had always impressed Dolf Kinney as lazy, however good a medic he might be, and Kinney, a driving man himself, had scant use for anyone who saw life other than through his own eyes. And that was the condemnation for him in the mind of the doctor.

Eklund stood, bent over, blinking momentarily in the shadowy dusk of the stage, following the bright sunlit glare of northeastern Montana prairie. The smell of old leather was strong, mingled with that of horses, of sweaty bodies and stale tobacco. For a moment he stood hesitant, while his eyes made out his fellow passengers, and the fact that the stage was already loaded to capacity. But it was take this accommodation or wait over for forty-eight hours—and sickness would admit of no delay.

Of five of the passengers he took only cursory notice, classifying them automatically as a drummer, a miner, a cowboy, an Indian in a blanket which he kept closely drawn about himself despite the stifling heat of the day, and a woman with faded eyes and work-roughened hands, the wife of some settler here on the border.

But the sixth drew attention as the sun draws water from the earth. Narcissa Hull was young and strange and new to this land, like a flower unfolding in freshness and grace. Her age the doctor judged at twenty, noting in his brief passing glance that weariness had not been able to quench the vitality in her eyes, that her skin beneath the softly folded brow hair was very fair and almost impervious to sun.

She looked to be of medium height and slender, which were desirable qualities in such crowded quarters. Between her feet, slightly lifting her gray traveling skirt, was a rawhide-bound bag. She sat on the rear seat, facing forward, the other woman on one side, the drummer on the other. The miner was opposite her, striving ineffectually to find a place for his unusually ample boots so that they would not be in her way. The Indian and the cowboy occupied the opposite corners of the facing seat.

Dolf Kinney was ahead of Eklund, stooping of necessity, surveying the situation, and his eyes lighted at sight of Narcissa. Seeing the boldness in them, she looked beyond him to Eklund, considered him for a quick sure moment, and, having weighed him, found him not wanting. In her eyes he read appeal, but Kinney was already seating himself.

showing in between the two women, contemptuous of how he pushed the other woman to the wall.

"Kinda crowded in here," he grinned to Narcissa. "But sometimes I like it that way. Makes it sort of cozy, eh?"

"I'd ride outside, but there's no room up there," he explained. "If so be as you find it close quarters, ma'am, you could perch on my lap. I've held ladies before."

"Thank you, no," she returned coldly.

She had a voice to match that quick, eager look in her eyes, save that now it was frigidly polite. The tone alone would have abashed most men, but no man, or woman for that matter, had ever seen Dolf Kinney at a loss, and he was no whit disconcerted.

As the stage got under way and dust commenced to roll in a thin mist up between the floor boards, he asked, "Going far?" Her reply was brief. "To Coyote Creek."

"Coyote Creek?" Kinney exclaimed. "Now ain't that fine! That's where I live."

She had turned and was looking out of the window with elaborate unconcern, but Kinney was not easily deterred.

"I hadn't heard that we was gettin' so civilized as to start teachin' the kids and mebbe havin' us a schoolmarm," he said. "But mebbe I'm wrong, eh?"

To that she gave no reply, and he tried again.

"Or mebbe you're out this way lookin' for a husband, eh?" he asked boldly.

This time she turned and surveyed him while the others watched with increasing interest. Erd Eklund found himself hanging on her words.

"As a matter of fact, I am," she agreed.

"Well, ain't that fine!" Kinney exclaimed. "This is sure my lucky day. Happens I'm lookin' for a wife, too. Didn't know it till I set eyes on you, but it didn't take me long to make up my mind. Ask Doc Eklund here if I ain't the pushin'est, richest man in this whole part of the country. He'll tell you you couldn't do better!"

She flashed a glance at Eklund, not one of inquiry, but the doctor spoke for the first time.

"He's right about the first part of it, ma'am," he said gravely.

He caught the responsive glint in her eyes, and her answer would have devastated a less thick-skinned man than Kinney. "As it happens, I already have a man," she said. "I'm coming out to marry him because I've known him before."

"The doggoned lucky coyote! What's his name?" Kinney countered. "Anybody I know?"

"I'd doubt that," she retorted. "He is Emil Jacobsen."

"Jacobsen? Sure, I know him. Big, rawboned Swede. Got a shack out in the middle of the prairie. Tryin' to farm and be a rancher, which for a tenderfoot is like a man liftin' himself by the seat of his britches. No fit place for a woman, 'way out there, 'specially a pretty girl like you. Not much of a feller either, the way he strikes me. You'll do a lot better to take me."

She looked at him, opened her mouth in exasperation, then seemed to think better of it and turned back to the window. But Kinney was not easily squelched.

"Keep it in mind," he said. "My offer stays open, to you. And you'll find, time you look around, that you can't do better. Fact is, you can't do as well, nowhere else. I'm a proper man, and properly able to take care of a woman."

Eklund regarded him curiously. He had long known that Kinney was an extrovert, so completely wrapped up in himself that he cared no whit for the opinions of anyone else, but to propose in public in such a manner was going pretty far, even for him. Narcissa continued to look the other way, and Kinney fell to talking with the drummer, who seemed to find him amusing. Eklund did not. He knew him too well for what he was.

Owner of the trading post and store at Coyote Creek, the biggest saloon, supplier for the local army post, and with his finger in other enterprises, Kinney pretty well dominated the community, just as he sought to run everyone in it. He had failed with Eklund, so far, partly because Eklund's business as a doctor was not one readily controlled. But in the half-year that Eklund had spent in the town, he had tried.

The miles, jolting and uncomfortable, passed in silence on Narcissa's part. It was not until they were finally pulling into Coyote Creek that Kinney addressed her directly again.

"You had time to think over what I said?" he asked. "It's a good offer."

"Thank you, I'm not interested," she returned shortly.

"You could do a lot worse," Kinney insisted, and swung down as the stage halted in a fresh cloud of dust which swirled around them. His eyes ranged the small group of bystanders, swung in a quick survey of the small town itself. Located in the midst of a treeless prairie, it was easy to look it over.

"Looks like your feller didn't show up," Kinney added. "When you change your mind, let me know."

Another reason the Republicans want to keep their jobs. The administration finds it may wind up the year with a billion-dollar surplus.

You can't blame the GOP for not wanting the Democrats to get the benefit of a surplus. The GOP took the leftovers for 20 years and they're not a mind to give them up now.

Compared to the national debt of over 270 billions, one billion looks pretty puny. However, in these days of high prices every billion counts.

For instance, the Agriculture department found that family food bills went up from $10 to $27 a week from 1942 to 1955. With food that valuable, it's no wonder nearly everybody's got an electric refrigerator.

Coffee Break Can Be A Healthy Pleasure

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THAT old American standby, the coffee break, might be a health help if it is just taken in moderation.

While most of us drink coffee simply because we enjoy it, there are other reasons for consuming this beverage.

For instance, two cups of heavily roasted coffee contain your daily requirement of the vitamin niacin.

Key Defect

Niacin is one of the B vitamins. A deficiency of it is the key nutritional defect in the human disease pellagra, once a serious problem.

Chemical and bacterial tests, conducted about ten years ago, showed that an average cup of coffee contained about one-tenth of the minimum daily requirement of niacin.

Recently, Dr. L. J. Tepley, of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, revealed that heavy roasting, as practiced to some extent commercially, brings the niacin level to nearly .05 per cent. That's about five times the niacin content of the roasted coffees most widely used in the United States.

Caffeine—which is found in coffee—is a good remedy for relieving several varieties of headaches, according to Dr. Arnold P. Friedman of Columbia University's New York Headache Clinic. He says caffeine taken alone or in combination with other drugs may be better than the new tranquilizers for tension and migraine headaches. He calls caffeine combined with aspirin "the sovereign remedy" for the garden variety of headache that troubles many.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

D. C.: What causes night sweats?

Answer: There are many causes for night sweats. The most common one, of course, is sleeping with too many covers. It may also be due to the presence of a chronic infection in the body.

Tuberculosis is another common cause, but the other symptoms of this disease are more pronounced, such as loss of weight, coughing, and fever.

The Meaning In A Name

NEW YORK (AP)—What's in a name?

Well, it turns out, a lot more than often meets the ear.

The name of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, for example, holds a meaning unwelcome to the Democrats in an election year. Nixon means "Nick's son," and Nick is a pet form of Nicholas, which means "people's victory."

Democrats may get some consolation

Teenagers Enjoy Dance In St. Philip's Church

Dusty Rhoades Band Played For 132

A group of teen-agers celebrated the close of Summer with a dance held Saturday evening in the parish house of St. Philip's Episcopal Church.

Hostesses for the event were: Miss Carol Ann Johnson, Miss JoAnn Spice, Miss Anne Adkins and Miss Dianne Schelb.

The hall was decorated for the occasion with streamers in fall colors of green, brown and gold. Garden flowers in large vases enhanced the window sills and the stage. The refreshment table, covered with a lace cloth, was centered with an arrangement of dahlias, flanked by tall tapers.

Music for the affair was furnished by the Dusty Rhoades orchestra. Both round and square dancing were enjoyed during the evening by the 132 invited guests.

Out-of-town guests invited to the party included: Miss Suzanne and Miss Elizabeth Grant, both of Wilmington; Miss Sally Counts, Miss Anne Templin and David Doner, all of Chillicothe; Harry Kitchen of Logan; Miss Sandy Hoenstein of Kingston; Bob Newton of Duval and Eddie Leatherwood, Art Mer-shon and Joe Caldwell, all of Ash-ville.

Chaperones for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson and the parents of the hostesses: Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Adkins Jr., Mr. and Mrs. David Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Myron Schelb.

Fair Homemaking Contests Interest County Women

The Pickaway County Fair-grounds Coliseum will be a busy place for women in the county that are really interested in the Apple Pie Contest to take place every day of the fair. This contest is in addition to the regular Homemak-ing Department competition.

Proper Cleansing Helps Improve Teenager's Skin

Having trouble with your complexion, teen-ager? Maybe what your skin needs is a clean start! Look at it this way! Many youth-ful skin problems are surface dis-turbances caused by clogged pores due to excessive oiliness. If skin is not properly washed, what hap-pens: Blackheads and blemishes develop!

But you do wash your face thor-oughly morning and night? You even scrub it clean?

That may be the very basis of your problem. Scrubbing will make sensitive skin raw and even more blotchy.

What we would suggest you try is a suds-pack facial. Here is how to give yourself one:

Use water as hot as you can stand. Work up a rich soapy lather. Gently press it on your face with clean finger tips, paying spe-cial attention to oily areas like the chin, around the nostrils, across the forehead. These are places where blackheads are prone to sprout.

The purpose of the hot-hot water is to open pores, permitting the lather to ease out oily impurities and stale make-up. Spend at least 10 minutes on your facial to make sure it is well done.

The final step is to rinse your face well in cool to cold water. Banish every last trace of soap and, with the last icy rinse, pores are closed and the cleaning job is completed.

Attendance for the 79-day Amer-ican Bowling Congress tournament at Rochester, N. Y., averaged 1,038 paid admissions per day.

Yogi Berra led the World Series hitters in 1955 with a .417 average. He made 10 hits in 24 trips to the plate.

Teenagers Enjoy Dance In St. Philip's Church

Dusty Rhoades Band Played For 132

A group of teen-agers celebrated the close of Summer with a dance held Saturday evening in the parish house of St. Philip's Episcopal Church.

Hostesses for the event were: Miss Carol Ann Johnson, Miss JoAnn Spice, Miss Anne Adkins and Miss Dianne Schell.

The hall was decorated for the occasion with streamers in fall colors of green, brown and gold. Garden flowers in large vases enhanced the window sills and the stage. The refreshment table, covered with a lace cloth, was centered with an arrangement of dahlias, flanked by tall tapers.

Music for the affair was furnished by the Dusty Rhoades orchestra. Both round and square dancing were enjoyed during the evening by the 132 invited guests.

Out-of-town guests invited to the party included: Miss Suzanne and Miss Elizabeth Grant, both of Wilmington; Miss Sally Counts, Miss Anne Temple and David Doner, all of Chillicothe; Harry Kitchen of Logan; Miss Sandy Hoenstein of Kingston; Bob Newton of Duval and Eddie Leatherwood, Art Mer-shon and Joe Caldwell, all of Ash-ville.

Chaperones for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson and the parents of the hostesses: Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Adkins Jr., Mr. and Mrs. David Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Myron Schell.

Proper Cleansing Helps Improve Teenager's Skin

Having trouble with your complexion, teen-ager? Maybe what your skin needs is a clean start! Look at it this way! Many youthful skin problems are surface disturbances caused by clogged pores due to excessive oiliness. If skin is not properly washed, what happens? Blackheads and blemishes develop!

But you do wash your face thoroughly morning and night? You even scrub it clean?

That may be the very basis of your problem. Scrubbing will make sensitive skin raw and even more blotchy.

What we would suggest you try is a suds-pack facial. Here is how to give yourself one:

Use water as hot as you can stand. Work up a rich soapy lather. Gently press it on your face with clean finger tips, paying special attention to oily areas like the chin, around the nostrils, across the forehead. These are places where blackheads are prone to sprout.

The purpose of the hot-hot water is to open pores, permitting the lather to ease out oily impurities and stale make-up. Spend at least 10 minutes on your facial to make sure it is well done.

The final step is to rinse your face well in cool to cold water. Banish every last trace of soap and, with the last icy rinse, pores are closed and the cleaning job is completed.

Attendance for the 79-day American Bowling Congress tournament at Rochester, N. Y., averaged 1,058 paid admissions per day.

Yogi Berra led the World Series hitters in 1955 with a .417 average. He made 10 hits in 24 trips to the plate.

Metalworking Industries See Big '56 Output

Last Year's Total Sales Expected To Be $9-Billion Over

CLEVELAND (AP)—Total sales in metalworking industries are expected to reach 138 billion dollars this year compared with 129 billion in 1955, "Steel" magazine said today.

With no major labor problems in sight for the remainder of the year, production is expected to be high in the fourth quarter, the trade weekly said. It added, however, that a shortage of steel caused by the recent strike of steelworkers will hamper some operations.

In a survey of prospects of the steel-consuming industries this year, the magazine said automobile production would be two million less than last year, business in the construction industry would be one billion dollars better than in 1955 and that sales in the appliance industry would match those of the previous year. Farm equipment sales will show a drop compared with the last two years, it added.

"Machine tool builders will receive one billion dollars worth of new orders in 1956," the magazine added, "and a last-quarter spurt may enable them to ship 850 to 900 million dollars worth of equipment for the year compared with 670 million in 1955 and 892 million in 1954."

The steelworkers' strike will prevent the steel industry from matching last year's record output of 117 million tons, the trade weekly said. Steel manufacturers will have enough orders to make a 114.5-million-ton year in 1956, it added.

Tin mill products, which are priced under a six-month contract, are in strong demand because of an expected price increase on Oct. 31, "Steel" said.

The magazine's price composite on finished steel advanced 16 cents to $137.75 a net ton last week. The composite on steelmaking scrap rose 66 cents to another new high of $58.83 a gross ton.

Steel production last week reached 7 per cent of rated capacity, a climb of 1.5 points. The rate was 92.5 per cent a year ago.

Navy Pilot Sets 115 Mph. Mark

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A new American speed record of 1,015 miles an hour was announced by the Navy at the national aircraft show Cmdr. Robert W. Windsor Jr. flashed to the new record Aug. 21 in a Chance Vought F8U Crusader.

Windsor's speed far exceeds the former American record of 822.135 miles an hour set Aug. 20, 1955 by Air Force Col. Horace A. Hanes, flying an F100 Supersabre in last year's Thompson event.

A British Fairey Delta holds the existing world record of 1,132 miles an hour.

Middletown Blast Hurts 7 Persons

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—An explosion of undetermined origin wrecked a two-story grocery here Monday, injuring seven persons.

Mrs. Lloyd Paige, 29, an expectant mother, was the most seriously hurt. She suffered leg fractures. The owner of the building, Leonard Adams, 64, was rescued by police from the second floor.

LET'S EXPLORE OHIO STATE PARKS

One hundred and forty miles of shoreline on blue Lake Erie is a priceless heritage that Ohio enjoys. But only at three widely scattered spots does the State of Ohio own pieces of this shoreline available to water-recreation-seeking citizens who are looking for sandy bathing beaches.

Closest to this State's heaviest concentration of population in northeastern Ohio, is a fine sand beach a mile long (shown above) within the 125-acre Headlands State Park just west of Fairport Harbor. The State-owned area was formerly known as the Painesville State Beach Park.

Under the thousands of poplar trees on this strip of shoreline are picnic tables and a parking lot to handle some 3000 automobiles. A master plan for the improvement of the Headlands State Park calls for expansion of the parking facilities and the building of new roads.

The other State-owned beach parks are Crane Creek State Beach Park, an area of 632 acres including a three-mile sand beach, about twelve miles east of Toledo; and East Harbor State Park, a 1248-acre area with a two-mile beach, accessible from Port Clinton, the gateway to the Wine Islands.

It precipitated our own Revolution which resulted in the founding of the United States of America. The Boston Tea Party is still symbolic. The Biblical story of Christ's repudiation and expulsion of the tax tyrants from the temple is still a warning..."

It is possible that some day, Americans will have another Boston Tea Party but that can only happen when the dollar has sunk so low in purchasing power as really to pinch most of the people. It used to be that the High Cost of Living stirred anger, but enough of our citizens are narcotized by subsidies and escalator clauses to satisfy them for the moment.

Increasing government subsidies for all organized pressure groups will not help those who receive fixed salaries, such as school teachers, policemen and firemen. In such an inflation as we have now, the white collar class suffers most and those who have the means and know how to speculate benefit most. It is not a sound situation.

Jerry Getting New Co-Star For Role Dean Martin Refused

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Meet Jerry Lewis' new co star—a chunky red-haired Irishman named Darren McGavin.

He will play the lead with Jerry in "The Delicate Delinquent," performing in the role which Dean Martin refused and which led to their split as a team.

McGavin is quite a switch from the dark-haired, Italian Martin. McGavin is an intense, accomplished actor; Martin is easy-going almost lethargic. About the only similarity between them: They both sing.

"But I won't be singing in the picture," McGavin said.

Right now McGavin is playing with another comic, fellow named Bob Hope. The actor portrays Charley Hand, the former managing editor who masterminds the political career of New York's Mayor Jimmy Walker, played by Hope in "Beru James."

Don't get the idea this McGavin is a funny fellow, just because he cavorts with comics. He had made his mark as a dramatic actor. Matter of fact, he's an alumnus of the Actor's Studio, along with such notables as Marlon Brando, James Dean, Rod Steiger, Julie Harris, Paul Newman, Shelley Winters and that student of the Russian classics, Marilyn Monroe.

Second matter of fact: He's probably best known as the nasty, mean, lowdown dope pusher in "The Man with the Golden Arm."

What can we say to this man?

This letter was received by President C. E. Williams of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company on August 20, 1956.

In part, the letter said:

Dear Mr. Williams:

I am an employee of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company, own my own home, believe in the Constitution of the United States, the American flag, and God Almighty. However, my wife and my family are suffering and I am suffering financially and personally because I have to picket and do things I do not believe in. Most of the employees are against the Union but are afraid of the hoodlums and thugs that are causing all the trouble. I thought that in America we also enjoyed "Freedom from Fear!" Why not give us a RIGHT TO WORK LAW so that real red-blooded Americans can work as they please instead of having to picket and destroy company property against our wishes. I want my job back and if given a chance I and many of my friends will vote against any Union representing us.

Local Representative

What can we say to this man?

This letter was received by President C. E. Williams of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company on August 20, 1956. In part, the letter said:

Dear Mr. Williams:

I am an employee of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company, own my own home, believe in the Constitution of the United States, the American flag, and God Almighty. However, my wife and my family are suffering and I am suffering financially and personally because I have to picket and do things I do not believe in. Most of the employees are against the Union but are afraid of the hoodlums and thugs that are causing all the trouble. I thought that in America we also enjoyed "Freedom from Fear!" Why not give us a RIGHT TO WORK LAW so that real red-blooded Americans can work as they please instead of having to picket and destroy company property against our wishes. I want my job back and if given a chance I and many of my friends will vote against any Union representing us.

(Signature withheld)

This man is being forced to strike—against his will. Meanwhile, irresponsible "sympathizers" are blackening the name of local labor by acts of terrorism, vandalism, and violence.

What we will do . . .

This man's job is waiting for him. Right now it's being performed by a supervisor—who is anxious to return to his regular duties. Thanks to supervisors, YOUR telephone service is being maintained. We'll welcome our workers back—as soon as they elect to come.

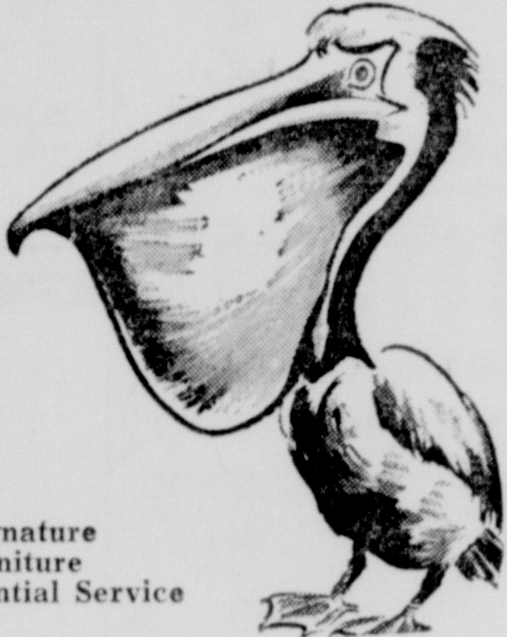

What you can do . . .

You can help protect your telephone service—and your community welfare. Call your local CWA office today, and ask them, "Why don't you let the telephone workers go back to work—now?"

Those Redlegs Just Refuse To Lay Down, Die

Cincinnati Divides Double Bill With Loop-Leading Braves

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Redlegs are getting downright uncooperative in that National League pennant chase. They just won't die.

Remember when they lost three straight in Brooklyn? And when they dropped three of four at Milwaukee? Or when they won only three of seven from the Braves and Dodgers in Cincinnati? It looked like it was time to buy beer for the wake.

Trouble is, the beer, not the Redlegs, wound up on ice.

They had a dandy chance to get measured again in the Labor Day doubleheader at Milwaukee. They blew a 2-0 lead and lost the first game 3-2. Then they blew a 2-0 lead in the nightcap, but bounced back to pack it away on Ted Kluszewski's 34th home run and a long-haul relief job by Brooks Lawrence that beat the Braves 7-5.

The split kept the Redlegs within 3½ games of first place Milwaukee and in a second place tie with Brooklyn, which split a pair with Pittsburgh. The Dodgers rallied to take the opener 4-3, but then got beat at their own game as the Pirates pulled a squeeze hunt to win the nightcap 3-2.

The other NL twinbills also were split. St. Louis defeated Chicago's Cubs 4-2, then lost 8-0. And Philadelphia smacked the New York Giants 5-1 before losing 2-1.

In the American, Baltimore's Orioles kept Mickey Mantle homerless — putting him even with Babe Ruth's record 60-homer pace in 1927 with 47 in 133 games — but lost a doubleheader to the New York Yankees 6-1 and 5-0. Second place Cleveland slipped 8½ games behind, losing 5-2 in a morning game at Kansas City, then winning the afternoon contest 2-1.

Chicago's White Sox split with Detroit, losing 11-8 and winning 5-3. Boston walloped Washington twice, 7-5 and 16-0.

Frank Robinson hit his 36th home run, two shy of the rookie record, for the Redlegs in the opener, but Hank Aaron busted his 22nd and 23rd for a 2-all tie. Joe Adcock then broke it up in the ninth with a single after Aaron's double and Lew Burdette had his 18th victory. Johnny Klippstein was the loser, getting banged on the leg by Adcock's winning blow.

Cincinnati rocked 16-game-winner Bob Buhl early in the nightcap and Klu then packed it away

Have-Nots Set For Chance At Next Rose Bowl Journey

CHICAGO (AP)—Who's going to the Rose Bowl?

That's been the theme in the Big Ten football race since the conference and the Pacific Coast Conference signed the pact nearly a decade ago and more emphasis will be placed on the postseason game this year than ever before.

The reasons: Neither of the two favorites, Michigan State and Ohio State are eligible. Therefore, the have-nots will be getting a great chance for the Pasadena trip.

Michigan State, considered the class of the Big Ten, is ineligible because the Spartans went last season when they dumped UCLA, 17-14, on Dave Kaiser's field goal in the final seconds.

Ohio State, gunning for an unprecedented third straight undisputed championship, has been placed on probation by the conference and its punishment is "No Rose Bowl trip." The Bucks were penalized for irregularities which included loans to the players by Coach Woody Hayes.

Michigan and Illinois, a couple of Rose Bowl veterans, are given the best chances of finishing in the all-important third spot but don't count out Purdue, Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota—the only four teams who haven't made the trip.

Michigan State lost quarterback Earl Morrall, fullback Gerry Plannutis and Buck Nystrom and Norm Masters from the line but Coach Duffy Daugherty isn't too worried.

Ohio State figures high again but whether the Bucks can stick to their grinding ground game without Howard (Hopalong) Cassidy is questionable.

Michigan's chances depend a lot on Ron Kramer. Kramer, an outstanding end, is being shifted to halfback because of an abundance of good ends headed by Tom Maentz and Mike Rotunno.

Illinois, finishing with a rush last year, has the backfield speed in Harry Jefferson, Bob Mitchell and Abe Woodson.

Purdue possesses one of the finest aerial attacks in the conference with Len Dawson pitching and Lamar Lundy and Bob Kneale catching.

Wisconsin slumped badly last season and have problems in the line and at quarterback where Jim Miller and Jim Haluska always were passing threats.

Northwestern has 23 lettermen but that could be deceiving.

Minnesota has a top notch quarterback in Bob Cox, a transfer student Washington, and 24 lettermen including some speed. The Gophers could be real good.

Indiana has only 11 returning lettermen but they coast Chick Chichowski, the Big Ten's top percentage passer.

At Iowa, Forest Evashevski has a big rebuilding job. Graduation took away the entire starting backfield and three key linemen.

Babe Ruth's Sprint Catches Mantle

NEW YORK (AP)—Babe Ruth's September sprint has caught up with Mickey Mantle.

The young New York Yankee slugger failed to hit a home run in Monday's 6-1 and 5-0 sweep over Baltimore, giving the Mick a 47 total for 132 games. Ruth, who swatted 17 in September to gain his record 60 in 1927, also had 47 after 132 games.

Ruth, however, was in the process of smacking five in three games, adding his 48th and 49th in the 134th game. His 50th came in game No. 138.

Swaps Overcomes Jinx In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Swaps was headed for Atlantic City as thoroughbred racing's fourth all-time money winner today after proving to Chicago fans that Washington Park is no longer his jinx track.

Rex C. Ellsworth's California-bred speedster easily won the $142,700 Washington Park Handicap Monday over Mrs. John W. Galbreath's Summer Tan.

Swaps' time for the mile spin, climaxing Washington Park's closing program before the best turnout of the Chicago racing season, was 1:33 2-5, a record.

Elks Bowling League Will Open Thursday Night At Local Alley

Circleville Elks Bowling League will open its 1956-57 season here Thursday night.

Charles Gray, president of the league, said that six six-man teams, along with a "player pool", had been organized for the new season.

Gray explained that the 18 top average players from last year's league had been seeded at random — three to each of the six teams. The balance of the players of the league were used to fill out the teams. Lodge members who indicated they might not be able to play regularly were placed in the "player pool."

Gray said that, as has been the case in the past, those players who complete a majority of the scheduled games will be sent to the state Elks tournament next Spring with all expenses paid by the lodge. The 1957 tourney will be held in Lakewood.

OFFICERS of the Elks league, in addition to Gray, are: Walter Ehmling, vice president; Walter Garner, treasurer; and Walter Zahard, secretary.

Teams setup are as follows:
No. 1: Walter Zahard, Karl

Bird Season Opens Even For Seaman

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—It was the opening day of dove season but Pete Peters, skipper of a sport fishing boat, didn't expect to participate.

Peters said he was 40 miles at sea Saturday when a dove landed on a rail of his boat, Fisherman II. Peters shot it with a gun he keeps in the cabin, picked up the bird from the deck.

Last year, he shot a rabbit about 15 miles at sea. The rabbit was on a help bed that apparently had floated from shore.

Charley Trippi, Bob Nowaski, Chuck Drulis and Wally Lemm are assisting Coach Ray Richards of the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League.

good study lighting

Proper study lighting helps prevent eyestrain, keeps eyes fresh and makes homework easier. All it takes is the right light in the right place. Use a big enough bulb, a white-lined shade and a diffusing bowl to help spread the light on the reading plane. Light should cover the entire study area . . . without glare or dark shadows. Protect your child's eyes with good study lighting. For more information and free literature about lighting your child's study area, phone the Home Lighting Dept. of the Electric Company

Tiger Grid Roster Lists 30 Players

9 Seniors, 21 Juniors Work Out; Starting Lineup Still Uncertain

Circleville High School football coach Steve Brudzinski today announced that 30 gridgers are trying out for positions on the 1956 Tiger squad. The roster includes nine seniors and 21 juniors.

A list of freshmen and sophomores working out with coach Dick Boyds reserve team will be released later this week.

The season is still too early, coach Brudzinski pointed out, to say exactly which position each boy will be playing on the team. "However, within the next few days our lineup should be about set," the Tiger coach added.

In practice sessions held so far, the first string backfield has included Dick Banks at quarterback, Mike Hosler at left half and Don McClaren at fullback. Other backs expected to see plenty of action during the season are Wendell Emerine, Steve Heeter, Dave Carpenter, Neil Sark and Ted Wellington.

Coach Bennett explained that Kendall Dawson, Bob McCain, Larry Conrad, Larry Leist, Norton Barnes, Bob Sines and Jim Wolford will also be counted on for heavy duty as linemen.

The complete CHS varsity grid-iron roster is as follows:

SENIORS

A practice scrimmage with Logan is tentatively scheduled for tonight at 7 on the local gridiron. The game had been set for last Friday, but was cancelled due to rain.

Longden Sets All-Time Mark For Jockeys

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP)—On a day in 1927 a willing but anonymous young jockey rode a horse named Hugo K. Asher for a win at the fairgrounds at Salt Lake City.

The exact date is obscure, the event most inauspicious, but the rider, a man named John Eric Longden, has come a long way since that afternoon.

For today Johnny Longden, almost 30 years later and some 25,143 trips aboard a horse around a race track, has won more races than any man in the history of the thoroughbred sport.

The galloping grandpa, 46-year-old Johnny, moved into the all-time winner's circle in dramatic manner here Monday when he tied and then surpassed the international record held by England's Sir Gordon Richards.

The mark was 4,870. It had held firm since Sir Gordon, now an old friend of Longden's, retired in 1934.

Monday, America's "Sir John" hung up a riding triple, climaxed with win No. 4,871 registered in sensational fashion in the feature race of the holiday weekend, the $33,350 Del Mar Handicap.

He has won in purses some $15,600,000. He has won 4,871 races. He has earned all he has, which is a large bank account, a fine home, a fine family.

Birdie, Haney Debate Split Doubleheaders

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Who, if anybody, benefits from a split double-header between contenders in a race such as now is boiling in the National League?

Fred Haney, manager of the league leading Milwaukee Braves, declares they did by dividing Monday's Labor Day twin-bill with Cincinnati.

But voluble Birdie Tebbetts, skipper of the Redlegs presents a case to support his contention that his club gained by it.

The Braves chalked up a 3-2 victory in the first game but Cincinnati took the nightcap, 7-5, to remain in a dead heat for second place with Brooklyn 3 1/2 games behind.

"All a split means is that now we have two less games to play and we haven't lost any ground to either of the second place clubs," Haney said. "We're still 3 1/2 games ahead."

"They gotta do better than split with us," maintained Tebbetts, who majored in psychology in college. "We'll still be snapping at their heels if we split this four-game series."

"I don't give a hoot what we do here," he added. "I got the kind of club that can go on a 10-game winning streak after we leave here."

"Believe me, this is a big series for Milwaukee. They can't afford to split even with us. If they don't do anything to us now, we're liable to go on a real long streak."

Flingers Keep Title

DAYTON (AP)—Marion Shadley of Wilmington and Kenny Poff of Dayton retained their NAU horse-shoe pitching championship here Sunday in a special round-robin playoff.

Randall Sets Mark

CLEVELAND (AP)—Monday's mutual handle of $1,106,817 at Randall Park was the second highest in the history of Ohio horse racing. A crowd of 17,061 turned out for the 10-race program.

SOME positions on coach Tom Bennett's forward wall are also undecided at this early season date. Tigers showing quite a bit of promise in line play include: Bill Johnson and T. D. Van Camp at right end; Ron Stucker and Dave Garrett at right tackle; Gary Phifer and Terry Barthel.

2 Bucks Bruised During Practice

COLUMBUS (AP)—Two minor injuries marked the opening of fall football practice for Ohio State's Buckeyes Monday.

End Leo Brown suffered a cleat cut and substitute quarterback Lynn Theis banged a knee he injured two years ago. Neither was expected to be put out of action.

The Big Ten champions went through an hour and a half practice in the morning and an hour and 45 minutes in the afternoon.

Coach Bennett explained that Kendall Dawson, Bob McCain, Larry Conrad, Larry Leist, Norton Barnes, Bob Sines and Jim Wolford will also be counted on for heavy duty as linemen. The complete CHS varsity gridiron roster is as follows:

SENIORS

A practice scrimmage with Logan is tentatively scheduled for tonight at 7 on the local gridiron. The game had been set for last Friday, but was cancelled due to rain.

Birdie, Haney Debate Split Doubleheaders

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Who, if anybody, benefits from a split doubleheader between contenders in a race such as now is boiling in the National League?

Fred Haney, manager of the league leading Milwaukee Braves, declares they did by dividing Monday's Labor Day twin-bill with Cincinnati.

But voluble Birdie Tebbets, skipper of the Redlegs presents a case to support his contention that his club gained by it.

The Braves chalked up a 3-2 victory in the first game but Cincinnati took the nightcap, 7-5, to remain in a dead heat for second place with Brooklyn 3½ games behind.

"All a split means is that now we have two less games to play and we haven't lost any ground to either of the second place clubs," Haney said. "We're still 3½ games ahead."

"They gotta do better than split with us," maintained Tebbets, who majored in psychology in college. "We'll still be snapping at their heels if we split this four-game series."

"I don't give a hoot what we do here," he added. "I got the kind of club that can go on a 10-game winning streak after we leave here."

"Believe me, this is a big series for Milwaukee. They can't afford to split even with us. If they don't do anything to us now, we're liable to go on a real long streak."

Flingers Keep Title

DAYTON (AP)—Marion Shadley of Wilmington and Kenny Poff of Dayton retained their NAAU horse shoe pitching championship here Sunday in a special round-robin playoff.

Shadley, 21, of Wilmington, N. C., won the first game, 3-2, over Poff, 20, of Dayton, Ohio.

Poff won the second game, 3-2, over Shadley.

Shadley won the third game, 3-2, over Poff.

Poff won the fourth game, 3-2, over Shadley.

Shadley won the fifth game, 3-2, over Poff.

Poff won the sixth game, 3-2, over Shadley.

Shadley won the seventh game, 3-2, over Poff.

Poff won the eighth game, 3-2, over Shadley.

Shadley won the ninth game, 3-2, over Poff.

Poff won the tenth game, 3-2, over Shadley.

Shadley won the eleventh game, 3-2, over Poff.

Poff won the twelfth game, 3-2, over Shadley.

Shadley won the thirteenth game, 3-2, over Poff.

Poff won the fourteenth game, 3-2, over Shadley.

Longden Sets All-Time Mark For Jockeys

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP)—On a day in 1927 a willing but anonymous young jockey rode a horse named Hugo K. Asher for a win at the fairgrounds at Salt Lake City.

The exact date is obscure, the event most inauspicious, but the rider, a man named John Eric Longden, has come a long way since that afternoon.

For today Johnny Longden, almost 30 years later and some 25,143 trips aboard a horse around a race track, has won more races than any man in the history of the thoroughbred sport.

The galloping grandpa, 46-year-old Johnny, moved into the all-time winner's circle in dramatic manner here Monday when he tied and then surpassed the international record held by England's Sir Gordon Richards.

The mark was 4,870. It had held firm since Sir Gordon, now an old friend of Longden's, retired in 1954.

Monday, America's "Sir John" hung up a riding triple, climaxed with win No. 4,871 registered in sensational fashion in the feature race of the holiday weekend, the $33,350 Del Mar Handicap.

He has won in purses some $15,600,000. He has won 4,871 races. He has earned all he has, which is a large bank account, a fine home, a fine family.

Colville Says Any County Business Is Now 'Big Business'

Auditor Branch Commended For Settlement Job

Treasurer Explains How Subdivisions Need Growing Help

The time when county governments in Ohio could coast along with experimental policies and hit-or-miss methods "is now far past and gone forever," Pickaway County Treasurer Bob Colville said today.

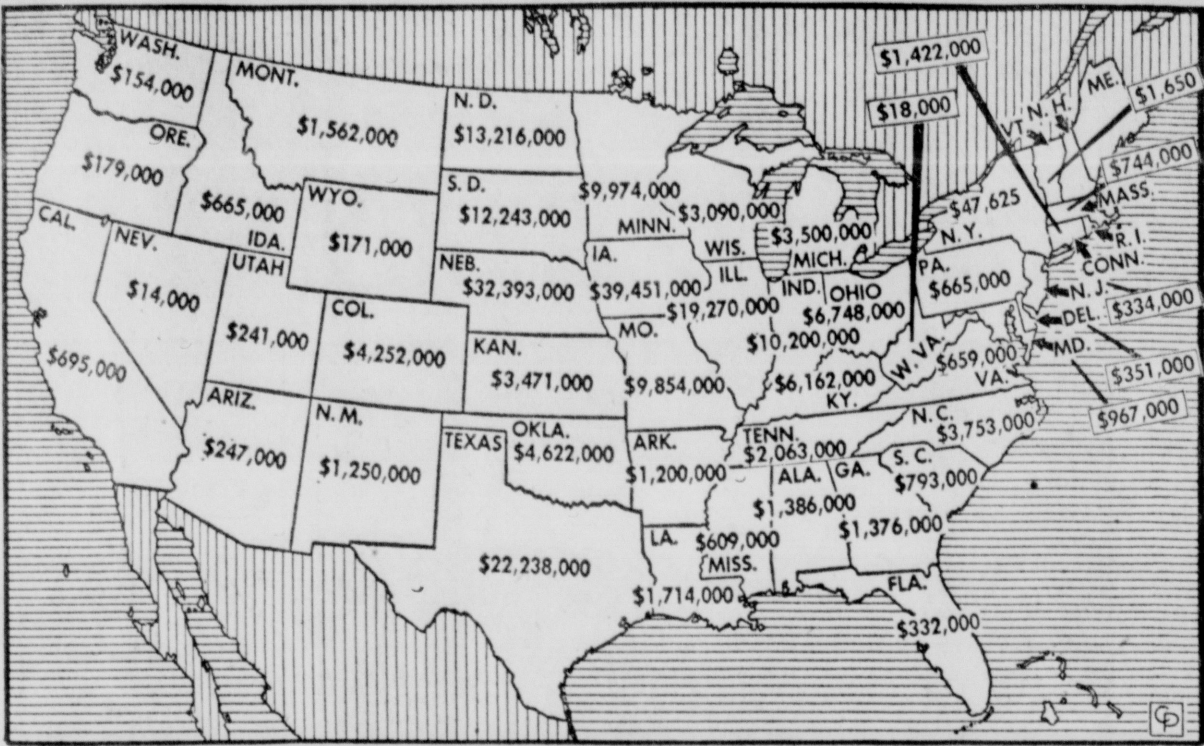

He made the comment in reviewing the improved financial condition of the local county government structure and telling of plans to modernize it still further in the future. "County government in Ohio is big business nowadays," Colville said. "It has to be big and it has to be efficient—the people in the subdivisions demand it. The slow and easy ways went out of style years ago."

Illustrating efficient work here in behalf of the subdivisions, Colville pointed out that the county auditor's office this year completed the August settlement on schedule—for the first time in at least 10 years. The settlement, completed August 29, is a distribution of funds to the subdivisions on the collection of real estate and public utility taxes.

"They (the office of County Auditor Verna O'Hara) did the August settlement in record time this year," Colville said. "And that's bound to be a big help to the subdivisions—at a time when they need the money for all sorts of modernizing and repairs. It all goes toward making a more modern and prosperous Pickaway County, and that's what all of us want."

TO HAVE tax distributions made on schedule, the county treasurer explained, is of special importance to the subdivisions since it eliminates the need of loans for maintenance of the various services in the townships and villages.

"The people (in the subdivisions) are demanding more and more these days in the way of better roads, good school buildings, sewers, water lines, gas hookups and lots of other things," Colville said.

Voter Registration Higher; Big Ohio Vote Seen In Fall

By REED SMITH

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio could be headed for a record vote in the Nov. 6 election.

Reports to Secretary of State Ted W. Brown tell of increasing voter registrations in the larger cities. Sept. 26 is the last day to register.

"If enough people get registered, there will be a record vote in Ohio," Brown asserted. He said it was too early to make a firm prediction.

The recent national conventions, interest in the Ohio race for U.S. senator and early campaigning by gubernatorial opponents got major credit for the registration pickup in Brown's book.

Both Republican and Democratic parties are stepping up registration drives in the 37 counties requiring voters to qualify in advance. Twenty-one counties now have complete registration, 16 others require registration in parts of the counties.

Residents of the other 51 counties can vote without registering if they are 21 years old by election day and have lived in the state a year and in their precinct 40 days.

A non-partisan "Voter's Guide" published by the secretary of state gives qualifications and directions for voting. Thousands have gone out to public officials and organizations for distribution.

Brown said individuals can obtain them free from county election boards or his office in Columbus.

"If you have not voted in the past two years or if you have changed your name, you must appear in person in order to re-register," the guide says. "If you have moved, you may register your change of address by mail on a form furnished by your county board of elections."

An exception applies to women who marry after registration closes Sept. 26. They may vote on Nov. 6 but not thereafter under their former names, the guide explains.

Ohioans in the armed forces who are 21 need not register to vote while in service. They can apply for ballots on federal forms or those obtained from local election boards. Near relatives can apply at election boards for ballots to be sent service personnel.

Noon of Nov. 3 is the deadline for service ballot applications. Election boards will start mailing ballots to service applicants Sept. 7. Marked service ballots must be returned by noon of election day to be counted.

Boards will send out absent and disabled voter ballots between Oct. 7 and Nov. 1. Those marked ballots must be returned by noon of Nov. 2.

An "absent voter" expects to be outside his home county or at least 10 miles from his voting precinct on election day.

"Ah-h-h...beer at its golden best!"

The truth is that good golden Hudepohl starts out much the same as other really fine beers. With extra-generous portions of grains and hops and yeast and malt. Ingredients of a quality for which we gladly pay a premium. That's what makes a great beer. That plus patience and skill. But then we do something different.

What we do is a closely guarded secret. It's a special, costlier step in brewing. You might call it a finishing process. And what it does is make Hudepohl even brighter and more golden. So we named it Process 14-K. And that's why Hudepohl is more than just another fine beer. It's "14-K!" Which means... it's beer at its golden best!

Voter Registration Higher; Big Ohio Vote Seen In Fall

By REED SMITH
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio could be headed for a record vote in the Nov. 6 election.

Reports to Secretary of State Ted W. Brown tell of increasing voter registrations in the larger cities. Sept. 26 is the last day to register.

"If enough people get registered, there will be a record vote in Ohio," Brown asserted. He said it was too early to make a firm prediction.

The recent national conventions, interest in the Ohio race for U.S. senator and early campaigning by gubernatorial opponents got major credit for the registration pickup in Brown's book.

Both Republican and Democratic parties are stepping up registration drives in the 37 counties requiring voters to qualify in advance. Twenty-one counties now have complete registration, 16 others require registration in parts of the counties.

Residents of the other 51 counties can vote without registering if they are 21 years old by election day and have lived in the state a year and in their precinct 40 days.

A non-partisan "Voter's Guide" published by the secretary of state gives qualifications and directions for voting. Thousands have gone out to public officials and organizations for distribution.

Brown said individuals can obtain them free from county election boards or his office in Columbus.

"If you have not voted in the past two years or if you have changed your name, you must appear in person in order to re-register," the guide says. "If you have moved, you may register your change of address by mail on a form furnished by your county board of elections."

An exception applies to women who marry after registration closes Sept. 26. They may vote on Nov. 6 but not thereafter under their former names, the guide explains.

Ohioans in the armed forces who are 21 need not register to vote while in service. They can apply for ballots on federal forms or those obtained from local election boards. Near relatives can apply at election boards for ballots to be sent service personnel.

Noon of Nov. 3 is the deadline for service ballot applications. Election boards will start mailing ballots to service applicants Sept. 7. Marked service ballots must be returned by noon of election day to be counted.

Boards will send out absent and disabled voter ballots between Oct. 7 and Nov. 1. Those marked ballots must be returned by noon of Nov. 2.

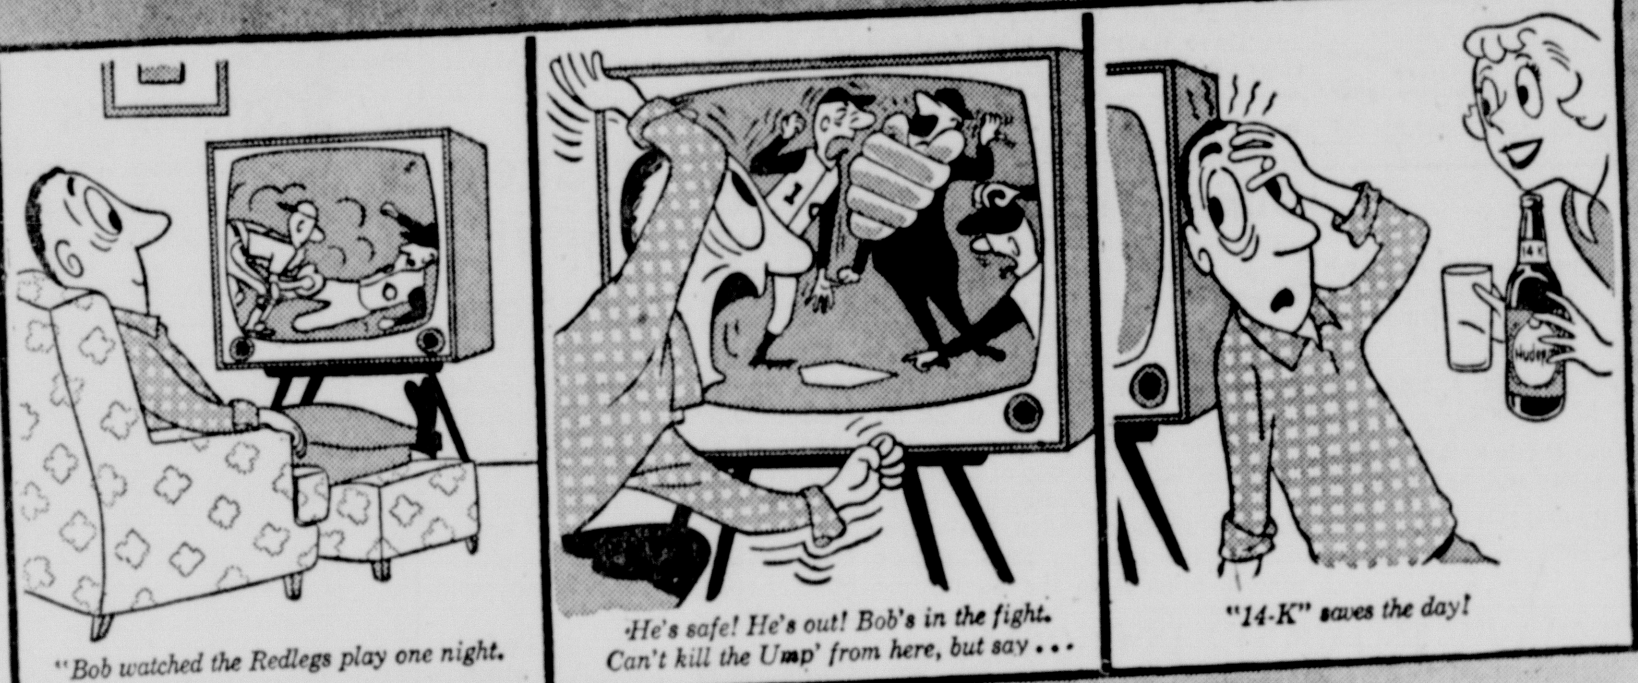

An "absent voter" expects to be outside his home county or at least 10 miles from his voting precinct on election day.

CHICAGO BANKER Edward A. Hintz is shown in court in Chicago after being sentenced to prison for his part in a million dollar state check fraud. He pleaded guilty to charges of cashing checks for ex-Illinois state Auditor Orville E. Hodge, serving a term for misapplying state funds. The judge probated five of Hintz's eight-year sentence. "Ah-h-h...beer at its golden best!"

The truth is that good golden Hudepohl starts out much the same as other really fine beers. With extra-generous portions of grains and hops and yeast and malt. Ingredients of a quality for which we gladly pay a premium. That's what makes a great beer. That plus patience and skill. But then we do something different. . . .

What we do is a closely guarded secret. It's a special, costlier step in brewing. And what it does is make Hudepohl even brighter and more golden. So we named it Process 14-K. And that's why Hudepohl is more than just another fine beer. It's "14-K!" Which means . . . it's beer at its golden best!

Look for this seal. It's your guarantee of beer at its golden best . . . of purity, brilliance and genuine satisfaction in every drop.
